Lord Mayor of London To Visit Here In August

Sir Percy Vincent Is Expected to Spend Two Days in Victoria; While on Coast He Will Visit Vancouver for Its Golden Jubilee; Party to Arrive At Quebec August 13 and Cross Canada By Train

Sir Percy Vincent, Lord Mayor of London, is expected to visit Victoria in August. News came today that he and the party that will accompany him on his transcanada tour are scheduled to spend two days here and two days in Vancouver. As far as the records disclose, it will set a precedent, as never before in Victoria history has a Lord Mayor of London been a guest of the city.

Information regarding the tour came to The Times today in the following Canadian Press dispatch:

Vancouver, March 10.—The Lord Mayor of London has signified his intention of attending Vancouver's Golden Jubilee celebrations this year, and Secretary of State Cordell Hull will probably represent the United States if President Roosevelt is unable to visit the city. Mayor G. G. McGeer said today.

The mayor made the announcement on his return from Ottawa, where he attended the opening weeks of the session of the House of Commons as member for Vancouver-Burrard. He also made brief visits to other Canadian and United States centres before returning here.

His stay in Vancouver will be brief, however. He intends to leave for Ottawa early next week for the Canadian mayors' conference March 21.

The Lord Mayor's party, including two sheriffs, sword-bearer, a mace-bearer and five attendants, is due in Quebec August 13, and is scheduled to leave for the west a few days later. Mayor McGeer said he had been informed by cable. The party plans on spending two days each in Vancouver and Victoria.

TAX PROBLEM
Mayor McGeer criticized a proposal before the city council to increase the mill rate in an effort to balance Vancouver's budget, which is confronted with an expected shortage of close to $2,000,000.

"If we can't collect the present taxes, it ought to be reasonable to almost anybody that an increase in the tax rate is not going to make it any easier," he said.

B.C. To Face Big Issues In Summer

Government in Position to Come to Grips With Major Problems This Year, Says Premier Pattullo; Cites Reasons For Fall Session and Postponement of By-elections

Although suffering from hoarseness, Premier Pattullo spoke for an hour in the Legislature yesterday, made a spirited defence of his administration's record, outlined in detail its present position in relation to negotiations with Ottawa, and, concluding the debate on the address, appealed for patience from the people.

"All I am asking for is for the people as a whole just to be patient. I sincerely think and feel that everything will work out for the good of British Columbia," he said, after an exhaustive review of these different policies.

"All of us, after all, have the welfare of the province at heart. This government is fully apprised of its duty to leave no stone unturned to benefit all the people."

Indicating the government expected to have these decisive policies settled this year, he said:

"We hope to come to grips with the situation this summer. What we will do I cannot say now. I know we're going to do something. I'm not sure what it is yet, but it will be something."

In the course of his address, he intimated the Burrard and Omnica (Turn to Page 3, Col. 6)

CITY'S ACTION DRAWS LETTER

Attorney-General's Department Notes Council's Duty in Defalcation

The duty of the City Council to enforce the law in connection with a recent defalcation is pointed out to the council in a letter received at the City Hall today from the Attorney-General's Department.

It was understood the message was one of implied censure over the failure of the city to initiate legal prosecution following the dismissal of a city employee after shortages had been found in his accounts.

Hon. Gordon Sloan, Attorney-General, in explanation of the letter today stated it had referred to the defalcation at the City Hall and had drawn the council's attention to its duty in law enforcement.

Mayor Leeming would not disclose the actual text of the letter today, but it was understood it would be brought before the City Council at its meeting this evening. Mayor Leeming indicated legal opinion would be secured on the issue.

At its last meeting the council decided by a divided vote against legal prosecution. When the question was put the council split, six voting against prosecution and four casting their ballots for legal action in order to protect the city.

SPLIT VOTE

Alderman Stanley Okell, who presented the motion for prosecution, explained at the time he was taking that action to avoid the possible construction by citizens that the council was condoning an offence. At his request the vote was recorded, showing himself, Alderman Andrew McGavin, Alderman R. A. C. Dewar and Alderman Archie Wills in favor of the proposal.

Those against prosecution were: Mayor Leeming and Aldermen T. W. Hawkins, Ed. Williams, Walter Luney, J. D. Hunter and James Adam.

Alderman P. R. Brown was absent. At the time of the discussion, those who opposed prosecution claimed it was up to the bonding company to initiate action.

While the opinion of the City Council will not be known publicly until this evening it was learned on good authority that the solicitors intended to refuse any legal responsibility on the part of the city to press for prosecution.

TEA PRICES UP THREE CENTS

Canadian Press
Vancouver, March 10.—Wholesale prices of all grades of tea advanced three cents a pound today, according to announcements made by tea merchants here.

Prices jumped five cents at the first of the month, and today's announcement forecasts further advances.

The higher prices are reported to be due to declines in surplus stocks at London, the tea centre of the world.

The price of tea advanced three cents a pound today, but Victoria merchants denied that it had gone up five cents at the beginning of the month. Local wholesalers were not of the opinion that tea would go up any further.

WHERE GERMAN ARMY UNITS CROSSED RHINE ON BRIDGE

For the first time since its dedication in 1929, the Cologne-Mulheim bridge across the Rhine, largest suspension span in Germany, is resounding to the thud of German troops' feet, following military recapture of the Rhineland by the Reich last Saturday. Stretching for 4,200 feet across the storied river that has seen twenty centuries of bloodshed, the span as pictured above, links what was the "lost territory" with the Nazi-ruled realm.

NO NEW CANADIAN COMMITMENTS BEYOND BORDERS

Premier King Makes Position Plain to Commons as Incidents in Europe Reported

Canadian Press
Ottawa, March 10.—Canada has made no commitments whatever with regard to Empire defence or any other military activities, Prime Minister King told the House of Commons today in answer to a question from J. S. Woodsworth, Winnipeg North Centre, C.C.F. leader.

Mr. King said he had received from Hon. Vincent Massey, High Commissioner in London, the text of the statement made in the British House of Commons yesterday by Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas, Secretary for the Colonies. Mr. Thomas dealt with the conference of Dominion premiers in London last May and the position of the Dominions in the League.

Defence matters had been discussed when the premiers were in London for the late King George's Jubilee. With respect to that, former Prime Minister Bennett had said no undertakings had been asked or given. Mr. King said he could say the same thing about communications passed between the governments of Canada and the United Kingdom since the Liberals came into office.

Tunnel at Bank; Arrests Made

Three Men Held By Vancouver Police After Finding of Excavation

Canadian Press
Vancouver, March 10.—Three men today were held by police in connection with an attempt to loot the vault of the Kingsway branch of the Royal Bank of Canada.

One of the men, Fred W. Roberts, has been charged with carrying an offensive weapon. No charges have been laid against the other two, whose names were withheld.

Royal Canadian Mounted Police received word of a robbery plot Saturday, and investigated an unoccupied store near the bank. The store had been rented last month to an unidentified man, who stated he intended to open a vegetable store.

In the rear of the store police found a large bin, apparently intended for growing mushrooms.

C.C.F. FOR HEALTH BILL

Leader of House Group Issues Statement on Insurance Scheme

The C.C.F. group of seven members in the British Columbia Legislature was definitely committed, in a statement issued by their leader, Rev. Robert Connell, today, to support the provincial government's health insurance bill.

Mr. Connell's statement followed a recent radio speech in Vancouver by Dr. Lyle Telford, in which he was reported to have said the C.C.F. should oppose the measure.

The leader did not refer to this incident in his statement, which read:

"The C.C.F.'s group intends to vote for the government's health insurance bill, assuming it follows the general outline laid down in the recent statement of Hon. Dr. Weir.

"We shall do so because we are in favor of health insurance, though we consider the bill as drafted is inadequate.

"We believe that no one should be excluded from contributing to health insurance or from its benefits; or if anyone at all should be excluded from contributing it should be those with the lowest incomes on whom any contribution would be a hardship.

"In addition, we regret that the government's policy apparently fails adequately to cover indigents.

"It is our intention to move amendments to the bill in committee in an endeavor to make it more adequate and more in accordance with our views on this whole question.

"I may say that our decision to support the bill because it establishes the principle of health insurance is the view also held by the provincial executive of the movement.

Proposals Follow Day of Discussion of Rhineland Situation by British, Belgian, Italian and French Spokesmen in Paris; Eden Says Britain Holds Germany Must Be Brought Back Into the League of Nations "At Any Cost"

Associated Press
Paris, March 10.—A reliable source reported tonight that Rt. Hon. Anthony Eden, British Foreign Secretary, had offered France "strong military guarantees" if she will negotiate with Germany.

The exact nature of the proposal was not defined. It was stated that, for the present, it is merely an idea of which the details must be worked out.

It was stated Mr. Eden had proposed a compromise following a telephonic conversation with Prime Minister Baldwin at 6:30 p.m.

AIR RAID DEFENCE VOTE IN BRITAIN

Associated Press
London, March 10.—The Home Office asked Parliament today to appropriate £501,250 (about $2,506,250) in the next fiscal year for air-raid precautions, an increase of £409,250 (about $2,046,250) over last year.

Germany as League Member
Mr. Eden, it was said, told Pierre Etienne Flandin, French Foreign Minister, that Britain was resolved Germany must be brought back into the League of Nations "at any cost."

The intimation such an offer had been made followed differences between France and Great Britain on the method of dealing with the international emergency which has arisen through Germany's sending troops into the Rhineland.

FOR NEW TREATIES

Great Britain suggested negotiations with Reichsfuehrer Hitler on his proposals for new peace treaties. France declared against negotiations so long as the troops remained at their new outposts along the French frontier.

Great Britain refused to entertain the idea the troops must be removed before friendly discussions could be undertaken.

Belgium and Italy sided with France.

These developments took place rapidly in a day packed full of diplomatic and political action.

FIRST PROPOSAL

Foreign Minister Flandin first broached the subject of combined action within the League of Nations to force German troops away from the border of a conference of representatives of Great Britain, Belgium and Italy.

He declared France would negotiate only if the troops were evacuated. He suggested that if Germany join in asking the League Council to act.

The British Foreign Secretary turned down this suggestion.

League Council to Meet In London

Powers Asked to Send Delegates There After Thursday Meeting of Locarno Signatories Dealing With Rhineland

Paris, March 10.—Conversations between the co-signatories of the Locarno Treaty will be resumed Thursday at London, it was announced here tonight.

At the same time it was announced the British government has invited the League of Nations Council to meet in London instead of Geneva immediately after the conference of signatories. The Council's meeting is scheduled for Saturday.

Friday's meeting of the Council in Geneva has been postponed until March 17 at Geneva.

Paris, March 10.—Anthony Eden, British Foreign Secretary, and Viscount Halifax, Lord Privy Seal, tonight abruptly changed their plans to go to Geneva and announced they would fly back to London tomorrow morning.

Originally the British statesmen had planned to travel directly to Geneva for the Friday meeting of the League of Nations Council scheduled to deal with the crisis provoked by Germany's remilitarization of the Rhineland.

Their decision was taken after a series of telephone conversations between Paris and London.

HEARING POSTPONED
Ottawa, March 10 (Canadian Press).—Due to the death of Mr. Justice J. H. Lamont, of the Supreme Court of Canada, the hearing of the royal commission on textiles, which was to have taken place tomorrow at Sherbrooke, Que., has been postponed until Monday.

No Reprieve For Hauptmann

Talk of Further Action By New Jersey Governor Subsides

Associated Press
Trenton, N.J., March 10.—Talk of a reprieve for Bruno Richard Hauptmann, at a high level a week ago, subsided so rapidly today that even the prosecution was inclined to believe Hauptmann would die in the electric chair the week of March 30.

This growing belief that Hauptmann had no chance for another reprieve, a reliable source said, caused supporters of an Assembly bill, related to Governor Harold G. Hoffman's activities in the Hauptmann case, to decide to defer a vote on the measure until after the execution.

The bill, introduced by Henry Young, Essex Republican, would continue Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the state police, in office until a successor is named and confirmed by the senate. Controversy about the bill centred on a report the Governor would replace Col. Schwarzkopf. The Governor has criticized the state police and recently ordered

Italian Fliers in Ethiopia Have Orders to Avoid Hitting British Units

Canadian Press from Havas
Addis Ababa, March 10.—Reports of new air and land fighting on both fronts today caused Ethiopian peace hopes to dwindle and renewed fears an Italian air attack on the capital is imminent.

Dispatches said Italian planes again were locked in a major battle in the north, with the outcome in doubt after both sides had suffered many casualties.

Canadian Press from Havas
Rome, March 10.—A communique issued by the propaganda ministry today announced Italy will push its East African offensive without letup despite reports Premier Benito Mussolini had ordered temporary cessation.

SOVIET SEES WAR DANGER

Germany's Rhineland Move Is Preparation For Attack, Say Russian Writers

Associated Press
Moscow, March 10.—Germany's march into the Rhineland is declared by authorized Soviet writers to be in preparation for a war which will involve practically all of Europe.

Karl Radek, who expressed the official viewpoint, said in the newspaper Izvestia that unless the states of western Europe take a united stand in the face of "menacing Nazi moves" war will break out, "more likely sooner than later."

"Threatening the east, German imperialism has already moved toward the west—that is a fact," he said. "All the rest is chatter."

PREPARING POSITIONS

The Communist Party organ, Pravda, asserted the purpose of the march on the Rhine is "to prepare political and strategic positions for war against the peoples of Europe." It predicted that Germany might be buried against France, Belgium, Czechoslovakia and the Netherlands, as well as against countries of the east.

The German contention that the Franco-Soviet pact is a military alliance directed against Germany has been denied here repeatedly. The Kremlin's attitude is that if Germany is invited to become a party to a general eastern mutual assistance accord, as originally proposed, there can be no well-founded suspicions that the pact is directed against Germany.

PREMIER ASKS DEFENCE VOTE

Baldwin Calls on British Commons to Approve Increases

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer
London, March 10.—Prime Minister Baldwin yesterday asked Parliament to approve the increased defence programme outlined in a government white paper a week ago.

"Our preparations," said the Prime Minister, "are preparations in case need should arise."

"The defence proposals represent the minimum it is felt should be required under present circumstances."

"The whole idea in my mind of collective security is that it should be able to prevent war before it begins."

The Prime Minister declared there never could be any permanent peace in Europe "as long as the prevailing suspicion went on between France and Germany."

"No one," said Mr. Baldwin, "is threatened by our forces and no one thinks they will be used for aggression."

He said the objective of Great Britain's foreign policy could be summed up in one phrase: "To secure the peace of the peoples of the British Empire and of the nations of the world."

Germans See Plans Advance

Welcome British Statement New Treaty Proposals Will Be Considered

Associated Press

Berlin, March 10.—The Third Reich expressed gratification officially today over Great Britain's attitude toward the German march across the Rhine and willingness to consider the new treaty proposals which accompanied the violation of the Locarno Pact.

The public pronouncements of Britain's Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden were declared by Foreign Office spokesmen to be a cause for satisfaction.

"The main thing is that the British cabinet will seriously consider the German proposals," a high Foreign Office official said. "We have full understanding for the fact the British government is not alone master of its decisions and that the whole apparatus of the League of Nations must be set in motion before Britain's final answer can be given."

TRYING TO SERVE EUROPE

This official attitude also was reflected in "The Evening Post," a widely-circulated daily newspaper which observed, obviously inspired by authoritative sources, that:

Germany again has made an offer. Her hand has been stretched across the Rhine. Britain has seized this hand and is trying to serve Europe. "Undoubtedly there is much in the British interpretation that differs from ours. But it is not the things that separates us that are important, but rather the common fate of Europe," it said.

Semi-official Germany, reflecting a note of warning over foreign reactions to Adolf Hitler's bold rearmament of the Rhineland, showed increasing interest in both the League of Nations and the Reich's war-lost colonies.

Indications were that the Reich is ready to be wooed by Geneva, with the return of a colony or two as a possible dowry.

TROOPS INSPECTED

Cologne, Germany, March 10.—German corps commanders began their first inspection of troops in the re-occupied Rhineland today as confirmation emerged gradually that the Reich's army on the Rhine was more than a mere assemblage of toys.

One Cologne newspaper published a photograph of a battery of heavy artillery, being kept in a slaughterhouse yard in a Cologne suburb.

Many more batteries were brought into the Rhineland zone, demilitarized by the Locarno Pact and the Versailles Treaty, could not be determined because of the official secrecy.

SEEN FROM PLACES

Censored descriptions of the army as it appeared from the air when moving into the Rhineland zone Saturday told of tanks and armored cars, but none of these have been in evidence in the zone since the start of the occupation.

TROOPS IN FACTORIES

Foreign residents said this equipment was brought in under cover of darkness. Simultaneously, the presence of troops in towns heretofore mentioned was being disclosed.

The Cologne suburbs, as well as the city itself, were housing troops, it developed, garrisoned in empty factories, buildings and school houses.

Nova Scotia Session Starts

Halifax, Mar. 10.—Doors of Nova Scotia's century-old Province House were flung open today to admit state officials and public as the third session of the province's seventeenth Legislature since Confederation was opened formally by Lieutenant-Governor W. H. Covert.

With the fanfare and pageantry over, the legislators will clear their desks for important business. Members will be called on to consider amendments to the Motor Vehicle Act which will provide more severe punishment for drunken drivers.

It is anticipated Minister of Highways A. S. MacMillan will request additional money for the continuation of a hard-surfaced road policy which will see the main trunk highways paved within the next few years.

BUDGET OUTLOOK

Premier Angus L. Macdonald, who is also Provincial Secretary, will announce the 1936 budget which is expected to provide for a diminished deficit, according to earlier forecasts. Last year he budgeted for a deficit of slightly more than $800,000. It is expected the premier will be able to show the province kept within these figures. At a public meeting three weeks ago Premier Macdonald expressed the hope that the province's budget would be balanced before the expiration of his government's term of office.

PENSIONS FOR BLIND URGED

Debate in Commons; Government Considers Field, But No Start This Year

Ottawa, March 10.—The government accepted with reservations a motion to consider paying pensions to the blind (persons over forty years old) urged in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon by Dr. Thomas F. Donnelly, Liberal, Wood Mountain, Sask. The same resolution had been offered several times in recent years by private members.

Finance Minister Dunning held out no hope for pensions this year, but said the government was sympathetic to the idea.

Blind people, Dr. Donnelly said, were the forgotten people of Canada and he believed Parliament owed them a debt. In 1931 the census recorded 7,343 blind people and the number was about 7,500 today.

Dr. Donnelly estimated the number of blind people eligible for pensions would be 2,614. This estimate took into consideration ages, returned soldiers and blind people earning $500 a year. At full pensions of $20 a month, the yearly expense would be $627,360, of which the Dominion share would be $470,530.

Harry Leader, Liberal, Portage la Prairie, who supported the motion, said the money could be found easily if the government turned a sharp eye on administration costs.

IN PROVINCIAL FIELD

The question fell without doubt within the constitutional purview of the provincial legislatures, Finance Minister Dunning said. The responsibility was essentially provincial in character and until a few years ago would never have been raised in Parliament.

"This is not a question of credit," said Mr. Dunning. "It is a question of extracting from the people of Canada money to give to some of the people."

SUPPORTED BY C.C.F.

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F., Rosetown, Biggar, Sask., said the resolution did not go far enough, but if it were adopted by the government it would be an excellent start in the right direction. The C.C.F. group was thoroughly behind the resolution.

Mrs. Agnes MacPhail, U.F.O.-Labor, Grey-Bruce, Ont., said Canada soon would be the only empire country with no legislation for the blind.

BENNETT'S VIEWS

Conservative Leader Bennett believed the government should study the problem of pensions for the blind, but not because was popular. He was not one who urged proposals on the government merely because they were popular. He well knew the problems and trials of men charged with authority and the demands made of them for all sorts of humanitarian objects.

With the Italian armies on the northern front, Ethiopia, March 10.—Italy's armies in the north moved forward today on all fronts.

Advance columns penetrated beyond Amba Alaji and the Lake Ashangi region.

A military authority explained the armies "are pushing now toward a decisive conflict."

It is possible that such a battle could be fought only against Italian Selassie's personal troops since the armies of Ras Mulatshay, Ras Kassa, Ras Seyoum, and Ras Imru have been routed.

Emperor Haile Selassie was understood to be in the region of Dessey, where his imperial troops were also stationed.

No New Canadian Commitments Beyond Borders

NATURE OF OBLIGATIONS

With respect to Canada's position in the League of Nations, Mr. Thomas had merely asserted all the Dominions were members. It should be understood, said Mr. King, that Canada as a member of the League took responsibility only for those steps which had been taken by Canada on its own behalf.

Canada had not adhered to the Locarno Pact. In any event, that document expressly stated no obligation was imposed on the British dominions.

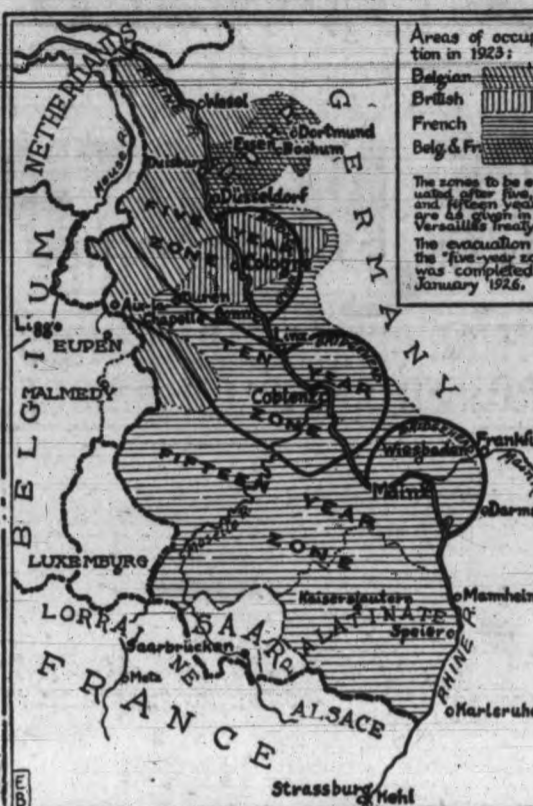

PARLIAMENT'S CONSENT

As to any military action arising from League activities or in any other way, action could only be taken with the consent of the Canadian Parliament.

Mr. Bennett said he thought Mr. King should have pointed out that Canada might be bound by a majority decision of the members of the League, even though this country might not agree.

Mr. King said this was so, and that his remarks about Canadian commitments had concerned only the Locarno Pact.

WHERE VERSAILLES BONDS BROKEN

The left bank of the Rhine, on which Cologne stands, was permanently demilitarized by the Versailles Treaty. Germany was forbidden to maintain military forces there or fortify any part of the area, violation to be regarded as a hostile act against all treaty signatories. The map shows the zones of occupation, as fixed by the treaty, in which Allied troops were stationed for five, ten, and fifteen years. Now German troops are in the "demilitarized" zone, having marched in last Saturday.

Britain Asks France Negotiate With Germany

After three hours of this conference, Mr. Flaminio went before the Senate to assert the French position. At the same time Premier Albert Sarraut went to the Chamber of Deputies and made a public appeal to the members of the League to "fight for peace."

He proclaimed his government's determination to get a clear and precise decision on "the agonizing problems of the strength of right against might."

MILITARY ALLIANCES

Premier Sarraut declared if Reichsfuehrer Hitler was justified in violating the Locarno treaty, "then we must turn resolutely toward military alliances and armament races and let us admit it frankly, to war made by the strong when the time favors."

Taking his cue from Hitler, "who spoke to the French people over the head of their government," Premier Sarraut talked "to the German people."

He asked the Germans "if you would have confidence in France signing new treaties if she had just torn up old ones? How, then, can the French have confidence in the fresh negotiations that Germany proposes?"

The Premier declared France "does not refuse negotiations to war made for peace in the future," but "cannot treat when dominated by violence and when signatures are repudiated."

AIDS LEAGUE MEMBERS

He said France was resolved "to join all her strength to that of other members within the League and to reply to the veritable assaults on international confidence, faith in treaties, collective security and peace."

"France," he said, "is ready to treat with Germany once respect for international law has again been assured."

"The future of European peace is at stake."

Premier Sarraut outlined the history of the signing of the Locarno Pact and of Britain's French effort to organize peace machinery during the last year, but stated Hitler let it be known, "first, that he would hesitate long before signing, and that he never would sign."

FRANCO-SOVIET PACT

Premier Sarraut firmly stated the Franco-Soviet treaty was not directed against the Reich. The Hitler government, he had tried to justify an act "which no nation can defend so long as there is law among nations" by sending troops into the "demilitarized zone," M. Sarraut said.

"Today the German government endeavors fruitfully to maintain that the Franco-Soviet treaty was exclusively directed against Germany."

"The very text of the Franco-Soviet treaty establishes the fact that it had the single object of assistance against any aggressor state, and Germany in itself is not so viewed, since the two contracting parties renewed their mutual engagement to seek the conclusion of a more comprehensive treaty, in which their assistance would also be assured to Germany if the latter state should be the object of an attack."

"Equally incorrect is the statement that France offered to Russia assurances going beyond her assistance which as a member of the League of Nations it has the right to offer another member."

IN LEAGUE FRAMEWORK

"Every proposal looking to the bettering of political and economic relations of the nations among themselves is, beyond argument, capable of being fitted into the framework of the League of Nations," said Premier Sarraut.

"It is none of our doing that certain countries do not belong to the

The Labor member was Rt. Hon. Arthur Greenwood, who declared: "If this chance is lost it will be a fatal and disastrous thing for the human race."

ARMS DISCUSSION

He said Great Britain's position in trying to preserve peace while examining a huge rearmament programme was inconsistent. Of Prime Minister Baldwin's speech yesterday, in which a plea was made for support of the armaments programme, Mr. Greenwood said it was clear Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde were both struggling for the mastery of Great Britain.

FOR CONCILIATION

London, March 10.—Great Britain assumed its familiar role of conciliator today, with some informed sources believing the greatest danger of a European disaster arising from Germany's Locarno Pact violation might already be passing.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, in Paris attending a conference of representatives of signatories of the Locarno Pact, brought all his talents of tact and persuasion to bear against the difficult two-fold task confronting him.

1. To cool France's eagerness for strong punitive action against Germany for its occupation of the Rhineland.

2. To obtain at least consideration of Adolf Hitler's proposals for new pacts, which accompanied his breaking of the old.

SANCTIONS QUESTION

Britain's Foreign Secretary might be embarrassed seriously in these efforts, some sources believed, by his earlier enthusiasm for application of sanctions against Italy.

Informed sources pointed out, however, there was a difference between actual aggression against a nation, for which the League of Nations was established, and the sudden and deliberate blow Germany has struck at Italy.

The prospect of an outbreak of war resulting from Germany's "invasion" of its own territory on the left bank of the Rhine was considered more remote in London.

SUPPORT VOICED

Strong home support for Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin's government's firm but conciliatory stand as a Locarno guarantor was expressed in virtually all British quarters.

House of Commons parties ranged solidly behind Mr. Eden after his declaration yesterday that Britain would march to the aid of France and Belgium if Germany attacked them, but with no reason to suppose the German action threatened war, Hitler's proposals for new security should be examined.

The general staff was understood to contend the German army was still unprepared, while the French army was at its height of form. An authoritative source said the general officers stated that, if there must be war, they preferred to have it now rather than a year or two hence, when Germany would be fully ready.

Before the powers' representatives met an official communiqué said M. Flaminio "made it clear that the object of the meeting is to exchange information and to define the situation, but no resolution will be proposed, and no decision will be taken before the League Council meeting."

ENORMOUS OUTLAY

Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill told the House that, since the arrival of Hitler in power, Germany had spent $1,500,000,000 ($750,000,000) on warlike preparations.

"The fact that Germany is spending 'any enormous sum on armaments,'" said Mr. Churchill, "warns us not only of the magnitude of danger but of its imminence."

"The German government will have to choose a not distant date between internal and external catastrophe. Can we doubt what course the man at the head of Germany would be likely to choose?"

SETTLEMENT BOARD

London, March 10 (Canadian Press Cable).—Announcing Lord Hartington would succeed Douglas Hacking as chairman of the new Overseas Settlement Board, Malcolm MacDonald, Secretary for the Dominions, said today the change had caused a slight delay in the meeting of the board. It would meet at the earliest possible moment.

Tokio Arrests For Trial For Recent Uprising Total 150

The arrests were carried out under orders of the Tokyo garrison, which put down the February 26 revolt after holding the rebels under guard in public buildings until they laid down their arms.

FIVE HUNDRED RESIGN

Five hundred other ranking officers resigned in a spectacular mass gesture of self-degradation and assumption of indirect responsibility for the coup d'état.

Topping the list was Gen. S. Hojo, aide-de-camp to Emperor Hirohito, who commanded the Wantung army when the invasion of Manchuria began in 1931, together with six lieutenant-generals, five major-generals, five commanders, several bureau chiefs of the war ministry and general staff.

Tunnel at Bank, Arrests Made

One of the walls of the bin was pushed aside and a trap-door was found.

Below the door officers found the opening of a narrow tunnel which led under the floor of an adjoining store sitting through the foundation wall of the bank.

GUARDS IN BUILDING

Guards were placed in the vacant building. Late yesterday a man unlocked the door of the store and entered. He was confronted by the police with drawn revolvers.

At the same time a noise was heard at the rear door, and the captives were rushed out to the rear, but could find no one.

Later, Roberts and the other man were taken into custody by officers in a raid on a Hamilton Street house. Roberts is alleged by police to have had a revolver in his possession when arrested.

British Press Supports Eden

In General Papers Agree With Government's Attitude on Rhineland Dispute

By THOMAS T. CHAMPTION
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, March 10.—Today's press opinion throughout Britain runs entirely in support of the attitude of the government towards Germany's abrupt denunciation of the Locarno pact and occupation of the demilitarized Rhineland, as revealed by Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden in his Commons speech yesterday.

The London Times reiterates the present state of affairs affords opportunity for rebuilding the Locarno security arrangements. "Nobody in England considers or expects the sudden and deliberate blow Germany has struck at the sanctity of treaties," says The Times, echoing the Foreign Secretary's words. "There are circumstances in the present case, as is clear from Mr. Eden's careful narrative, which make the offence particularly objectionable. But most of us are convinced also that, as Mr. Eden put it, no opportunity must be missed in the present grave condition of international affairs which offers any hope of amelioration."

TIME FOR CHANGE

The Manchester Guardian remarks the French even more than other countries which signed Locarno cannot but be indignant and dismayed at the brusque destruction of the inequality clauses which Germany had freely accepted and which in fact had contributed greatly to general peace.

"But is it not clear," The Guardian asks, "that the time has come when this inequality which has been a source of endless friction and resentment should be brought to a formal and legal end? There will be no peace until it is."

NEW AGREEMENTS

The London Daily Herald thinks Mr. Eden said as much as could be expected at such a moment. Far from slamming the door to Germany's proposals, "he left it very wide open."

"There seems no escape from the conclusion that we must in our interests try to make new agreements, even though we have doubts of the good faith of the other party."

The London Daily Express says that if any British government "tried to get us to put the Germans back out of the Rhineland by force, that government would be brushed off in an hour."

"Leave the French and Germans to keep their watch on the Rhine," The Express adds. "Our watch should be on the time, where better days are coming."

GENERAL SETTLEMENT

The London Daily Mail says: "This is no time for rash moves or hurried conclusions. Mr. Eden's statement that Hitler's proposals will be examined clearly and objectively will be generally welcomed. Now that Germany has shown her hand, a general European settlement could be brought nearer."

Supreme Court Justice Dies

PRACTICED IN ONTARIO

Mr. Lamont was admitted to the bar in 1895. He practiced in Toronto for four years and in 1899 he married Miss Margaret Murray Johnston and moved to Prince Albert, then in the Northwest Territories. He was appointed crown prosecutor there in 1902 and a King's Counsel in 1905.

He was elected Liberal member of parliament for Prince Albert constituency in 1904, but resigned the seat the following year to capture the Prince Albert provincial seat in a three-cornered fight and assume the post of Attorney-General of Saskatchewan in 1905 on organization of that province.

LAID FOUNDATIONS

Mr. Lamont organized the necessary legal machinery in the new wheat province and supervised consolidation of a number of acts placed on the statute books of Saskatchewan.

In 1907 he was named a puisne Judge of the Supreme Court of Saskatchewan, first such court for the province apart from the former N.W.T. Supreme Court, and in 1908 was appointed to the appellate division of the Saskatchewan Supreme Court, a post he held till appointed in 1927 to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Mussolini Has Several Advisers

But Guides Italy Without Lieutenants; Who Will Be Successor Is Unknown

By ANDREW BIRDING
Associated Press Staff Writer

Rome, March 10.—Benito Mussolini guides the fortunes of Italy without the assistance, and apparently without the need of any special lieutenants.

Contrary to the German dictator's claim, the Italian one wants no vice-dictators.

Consequently, it is impossible to answer the question repeatedly asked, "Who will be Mussolini's successor?"

In internal affairs, Il Duce is supposed to rely for information and advice on Count Costanzo Ciano, whose son, Count Galeazzo Ciano, married Edda Mussolini; and on Achille Starace, secretary of the Fascist Party, who now is in East Africa.

For foreign affairs he takes counsel with Undersecretary Fulvio Suvich.

EVOLUTION PROTESTED

Public protest against the teaching of evolution, described as the greatest insult ever offered God, was made by speakers at the evolution protest movement meeting in the Y.W.C.A. yesterday.

The speakers were: Rev. Canon H. W. G. Stocken, Mrs. S. H. Brake, president of the Mothers' Union of the Diocese of Columbia, and Mrs. G. Aitree Coley, who read a paper prepared by G. Jennings Burnett.

Canon Stocken said the Scriptures were God's textbook and could not be criticized by humans. Mrs. Brake said she believed evolution was being taught to turn people away from God, and was sure anyone who believed in evolution could not believe the Bible. Mr. Burnett's paper described evolution as being pure guesswork and a mass of plausibilities.

RUMORS SWEEP ACROSS ALSACE

Strasbourg, France, March 10.—Praying women and children, stirred by reports resurrected rumors of Kaiser Wilhelm are on the march in the Rhineland, crowded the parish churches on these French frontier provinces today.

As France poured new thousands of fighting men into the Maginot line and manned great anti-aircraft guns along the frontier hills from Belgium to Switzerland, the people of Strasbourg heard rumors that old imperial regiments, stationed in Alsace before 1914, have been revived in Adolf Hitler's Rhineland army.

Paris churches in villages such as Drusenheim, north of Strasbourg, were crowded. Many peasants, gazing at mile-long columns of troop-laden trucks rumbling through their placid villages, contented themselves with the blunt comment:

"This time we are prepared!" How many new troops had joined the 100,000 already in the Maginot line remained a secret at Paris headquarters.

Ruling Upholds Six-man Juries

Winnipeg, March 10.—Six-man juries were declared legal in Manitoba by a judgment of the Manitoba Court of Appeal handed down yesterday.

The matter came before the Appeal Court in an appeal launched by Henry Preusant, convicted and sentenced to one year in jail for manslaughter. The Appeal Court reduced the term of imprisonment to eight months and convicted for criminal negligence only.

Concerning six-man juries, the judgment, written by Mr. Justice W. H. Trueman, said the determining factor was the authority of the Dominion over criminal law and procedure. "There was no reason why the Dominion could say there should be a jury of six men."

ALBERTA SALES TAX EXPLAINED

Edmonton, March 10.—The new Alberta sales tax will not be charged to relief recipients, and "the necessities of life will be exempted," according to a statement made by Hon. E. C. Manning in the budget debate in the Legislature yesterday afternoon.

"The tax will fall most heavily on those in a position to purchase the luxuries of life. The tax is, of course, increased in proportion to the ability to pay," said the Provincial Secretary.

"The nature of this year's budget is necessitated solely by conditions produced by the old financial system, whose only remaining supporters in this Legislature are the six members on the other side of the house," he said.

"It is intolerable to have criticisms of Social Credit proposals from men who sat in this house for years in support of the old financial system," Mr. Manning declared.

NEW DRUMHILLER TAXES

Provision for imposition of a "rental tax" on every householder in the city and for a poll tax on all employed citizens not otherwise taxed by the city is contained in amendment to the Drumheller city charter which was passed through the municipal law committee of the Alberta Legislature yesterday.

The rental tax, according to the bill, would "assess such householders in a sum not greater than 10 per cent of the actual rental value of the premises."

Districts Get Much Publicity

That and Other Features of South African Press Described By F. J. Burd

Vancouver, March 10.—South Africa is a newspaperman's idea of heaven. F. J. Burd, president of The Vancouver Daily Province and Canadian delegate to the Imperial Press Conference in South Africa last year, told the advertising and sales bureau of the Vancouver Board of Trade yesterday.

"Nobody can find out what the circulation of the various papers is," he said, "and nobody seems to be greatly concerned. There is no quarrelling about circulation and subscription rates—which range from 10 to 500—except a large part of the service."

Newspapers there are favored by complete absence of labor trouble and printers are the most highly paid of any in the union, he said. The newspapers follow the pattern set in the United States, and many of them are better than those published in England, in Mr. Burd's opinion.

He said he knew of no place where the various districts were advertised with greater thoroughness. In regard to printing, he said that work was well done, particularly in Capetown and Johannesburg.

Unskilled labor has no place in South Africa, the newspaper executive asserted.

"It offers no opportunity for anyone except expert mechanics, professional men or business men," he observed. "The natives possess a remarkable imitative ability and can work at much smaller wages than white men. Most of the 'poor whites' live in hovels on the outskirts of big cities."

Mr. Burd paid tribute to the energy and ability of John Martin, who, he said, owns and operates eleven of the union's twenty daily papers. Among Martin's achievements, he said, was organization of the South African Typographical Union. It was through the union that the board of arbitration in connection with printers' disputes was established.

MOTION IS DROPPED

Ottawa, March 10 (Canadian Press).—A. A. Heaps, C.C.F., Winnipeg North, yesterday evening dropped his resolution in the House of Commons to pay pensions to all men and women over the age of sixty who were willing to retire from their jobs. In doing so he said he regretted the opposition of the government. The Heaps motion was debated earlier in the session, and was not discussed yesterday evening.

MAIL CONTRACTS TOTAL 12,952

Ottawa, March 10.—Postmaster-General Elliott yesterday afternoon told the House of Commons 12,952 contracts for transportation of mail are in operation in Canada at present. Included are British Columbia 892, Yukon fourteen.

SEEK WIDER YOUTH FIELDS

Commons Told Government Plans National Employment Commission Activities

Ottawa, March 10.—There was a general discussion of the plight of youth in the House of Commons yesterday when Deputy Prime Minister, Greenwood, Toronto, moved for establishment of a National Youth Reestablishment Commission.

He urged wider use of vocational schools to equip boys and girls for useful lives and possibly a subsidy for industry to teach apprentices.

The government accepted his motion, and in doing so, Labor Minister Rogers said one of the special functions of the proposed National Employment Commission would be to deal with those peculiar features of the unemployment problem relating to the country's youth.

PROVINCES TO AID

The Labor Minister said he hoped it would be possible for the federal government, acting in co-operation with the provinces, to arrange either improved educational facilities or better coordination of vocational schools and employment services. It was hoped also to revive the apprentice system.

Industry, continued Mr. Rogers, had been sending delegations to Ottawa for many years asking for this and that, sometimes wondering if the time had not come for Ottawa to send delegations to industry and say co-operation is necessary if we, with them, are to be able to deal effectively with this problem.

The government's labor minister would do everything possible to see youth had a decent chance, but he did not believe the remedy lay in ready-made jobs or public employment but in creation of conditions under which youth could find their own opportunities.

Furniture Men Heard on Tariff

Protest to Tariff Board at Ottawa Against Lowering of Duties Against U.S.

Ottawa, March 10.—Fears of Canadian furniture manufacturers that the Canada-U.S. trade agreement might result in collapse of an industry whose condition is already declared by them to be perilous, were set forth to the Tariff Board yesterday at a hearing on an application for an upward revision on the customs rates on furniture.

James E. Ferguson, secretary of the Furniture Manufacturers' Association, presented the case to the board.

At the end of a long day, featured by extensive analyses of statistics, came C. G. Tatworth for the manufacturers of display fixtures, coat racks, headless women in shop windows, and paper mache properties, which form the concealed bases of exquisite gowns and the like.

Mr. Tatworth protested any reduction in the tariff on these commodities, having regard to the mass production of United States manufacturers compared with the volume to which his own and allied products were necessarily restricted by the home market.

OVER WIDE FIELD
Mr. Ferguson's brief ran the whole gamut of the furniture industry. Heretofore furniture had been protected by a 45 per cent tariff, but the reciprocity agreement reduced this to 27 per cent. The United States was given most-favored-nation treatment in furniture exports, which meant that country was entitled to the lowest rate accorded to any nation with which it had concluded a trade treaty, he said. That nation was France.

A. C. HOUGHTON PASSES AWAY

New Westminster, March 10.—Word was received here yesterday of the death at Crawford Bay, B.C., near Nelson, of Arthur C. Houghton, pioneer resident of that district.

Mr. Houghton was born in England and went to the Kootenays more than forty years ago. He is survived by three daughters, Kathleen, Daphne and Phyllis, all attending St. Margaret's School in Victoria; a son, Basil, in Vancouver; and a sister, Mrs. H. Pollock, Beaver Point, Salt Spring Island.

CHEESE BONUS PAYMENTS

Ottawa, March 10 (Canadian Press).—The government paid $1,033,869 in cheese bonuses during the latter half of 1935, according to information given in the House of Commons yesterday by Agriculture Minister Gardiner. Payments by provinces included Saskatchewan $5,574, Alberta $11,232, British Columbia $4,996.

B.C. TO FACE BIG ISSUES IN SUMMER

by-elections probably would be held in June. He pointed out that holding the next session in the fall did not mean any extra expense to the country and explained that an autumn meeting was essential to deal with such matters as refunding, constitutional questions, new taxation powers, unemployment and social services on which finality had not been reached with Ottawa.

Much of his speech dealt with the achievements of the Dominion-Provincial conference at Ottawa for which the B.C. government had strongly pressed and around which many of its activities centred during the last year.

COMPLIMENTS FOR CABINET
Opening with a defence of the administration's record, he said the government had done all it possibly could under existing conditions. Even during the debate there had been individual compliments for each member of the cabinet, so there was no ground for argument they should be thrown out bodily.

The government had recognized as its first duty the need for placing the province in a sound economic position. It saw the necessity of amending the British North America Act before this could be accomplished and pursued this policy.

Its first success was the receipt from Ottawa of the $750,000 interim subsidy payment, both this year and last year.

"If we had done nothing else this item alone should answer criticism of our trip to Ottawa," he said. "But what is most important is that it was a recognition of the rights and justice of our claim for better terms within Confederation."

He reviewed in considerable detail the reports of the various sub-committees at the Ottawa conference. The House, he was sure, would be satisfied with the procedure for amending the B.N.A. Act when it was made public.

REFUNDING

In reference to the financial proposals at Ottawa, including refunding, he said: "The government is not in a position to further advise the House now, but we hope to do so at an early date."

In reference to the Ottawa recommendations on roads, he pointed out this was a means of providing work and wages, adding that he favored the Dominion Government assisting the provinces to do road work, and also assisting the national railroads to improve their rolling stock and equipment.

"There's only one way to build roads and that is to get the money," he said.

"However, I do think you'll see thousands of men at work on the railroads this summer."

INCREASING WORK AND WAGES
There were no valid grounds for saying the province had not pursued every line of endeavor possible to provide work and wages, he continued. Payrolls of British Columbia industry had advanced $40,000,000 in two years and minimum wage legislation had contributed to this. The government had assisted in developing offshore lumber markets, building up this industry.

"And when our credit was shut off last year by Ottawa and in the financial markets, the Finance Minister came forward with a nest-egg which enabled us to do road improvements. All are agreed that the work was well laid out and well done."

MANY THINGS TO BE DONE
Works were needed in Canada, not only to give employment, but because there were many things to be done, he said. As a matter of fact, the care of the jobs until long-range programmes of increased trade and similar remedies took effect.

"I prophesy the Dominion Government will have a fairly generous works programme this year. I am hopeful the Dominion will provide us with some. Is there any other way but works to meet this situation? Has anyone any other suggestion? There's absolutely no excuse for unemployment in Canada when there is so much work to be done."

Nor, he continued, was there any fair reason why the money was not forthcoming.

"The nations of the world are arming to the teeth—spending billions on preparation for war," he said, "If Great Britain gets engaged in a major operation, where will we stand? Aren't we going to be affected? Yes, of course, we are. These nations can't pay for past wars and can't pay for social services, but they pay for war preparations. Then we certainly should be able to spend a reasonable amount to provide employment."

AID FOR CITIES
In reference to the fall session, the Premier said the government was particularly planning to aid the municipalities.

"No one could be more anxious than we are to alleviate their condition," he said. "As a matter of record, it was the last Liberal administration of which I was a member that arranged to pass over large grants to the municipalities."

He repeated his assurance to the members that if they preferred to the fall rather than advance the next spring session to the autumn the government would be agreeable.

From the members' standpoint, he added, the two sessions might hurt rather than help them, since they would pay more income tax this year, having two indentities within the calendar year instead of one.

BY-ELECTION DELAY
Delay in the two by-elections after he had announced the seats would be filled for this session was caused by the incompleteness of the Burrard voters' lists and the absence of many of the ministers at the Ottawa conference, he said.

"If our opponents think the government is becoming more unpopular every day they should be glad there has been a delay. And they will have a chance to test this out, probably in June."

He touched upon forest preservation matters recently raised saying that with better preventive service, natural regeneration was all the province required. Artificial reforestation is out of the question financially. Moreover, some of the logged-off land was more suitable for agriculture than for new forests.

"DEATH WHISPERS" REVIVED

IT WAS IN THE EARLY 'TWENTIES that The Montreal Star was making us shudder with its "Whisper of Death" editorials, warning of an impending doom for the Dominion. We recall these now that we in common with other newspapers across Canada are receiving fly-sheets reproducing current editorials from The Montreal Star, warning of disaster even more dire than what we were threatened with more than a decade ago.

For instance, a recent one asserted quite bluntly that "the simple truth is that we are face to face with a crash which, unless it is averted, will blast this country's future and lead us into an economic darkness of such density and duration as to stagger the imagination." A day or two after withstanding the shock of that outburst, we received another fly-leaf, carrying The Montreal Star editorial of February 27, entitled "A Shameful Victory." According to this, the Canadian National was to blame for all our troubles, and, incidentally for "the impoverishment of fifty thousand C.P.R. shareholders," with "the C.P.R. tapped and drained by the C.N.R., badly crippled." In another reproduced editorial, the call is made for the opposition to join the government in "one common front in the hour of national peril," as "we are on the verge of disaster."

The recurrence of such manifestations on the part of The Montreal Star, has led The Toronto Daily Star to study the symptoms. Its diagnosis yields the discovery that whenever the Liberal party comes into office at Ottawa The Montreal Star falls ill. In fact, it nearly chokes with indignation and through force of habit takes to its well-known death-bed. The "Whisper of Death" was its most severe attack, previous to the current one. But the case history shows it survived and then "pulled through Mr. Bennett's five years of power with its respiratory organs in fair shape." Now, with the Liberals in again, it has returned to its death-bed, crying "Our National Crisis; Can We Survive?" Evidently, as The Toronto Star says, "it fears we can not, just as it always fears we can not whenever the Liberal party is in office. . . . Always, when a general election results in the return of the Liberal party to office, our Montreal namesake rises high above partisanship and advocates the doing away with party lines and the formation of a government of patriots in which there will be as many Conservatives as Liberals—none will be for party, all will be for the state."

Altogether, the diagnosis seems to indicate that The Montreal Star's affliction is a mental condition, arising from the first tenet of its faith that party government is a bad thing whenever the Conservative party is unsuccessful.

COLLECTIVE SECURITY

"COLLECTIVE SECURITY" IS NOW the phrase of the hour in international circles. Most of the powers which are feverishly arming for another war are all for it. Their leaders hold it up as their main aspiration, their most cherished agency for the perpetuation of peace—also an excuse for turning their military budgets to war dimensions. They are going to have it if they have to fight for it, and if another war should break out the slogan will be, "a war to insure peace through collective security," instead of "a war to end war" or "to make the world safe for democracy."

When Japan began her adventure in northern China she sought the approval of the League of Nations on the ground that she was laying the foundation for peace. China sought the collective support of the League against Japan. When Italy began her war against Ethiopia she also was out for collective security, while Haile Selassie appealed for the same kind of support at Geneva. France's interpretation of this form of security was a free hand for Italy in East Africa, which implied collective security for Ethiopia. France now wants it without any reservations in consequence of Hitler's military reoccupation of the Rhineland.

Great Britain, while adhering to the collective security pact of Locarno, which Germany has jettisoned and which Italy probably will abandon, is endeavoring to reconstruct the edifice which is in danger of some day crumbling into ruins amid another devastating conflict. Since Germany is scarcely insane enough to attack any of her neighbors now, and France is in no immediate peril, British policy appears to be sound and reasonable, and Britain the most moderating influence among the great powers of Europe. If she should fail, her record will be clear of any responsibility for a world-shaking catastrophe in the interests of collective security.

THE PRESIDENTIAL RACE

A PROMINENT POLITICAL COMMENTATOR at Washington says the one sure thing in the presidential election situation so far is the nomination of Mr. Roosevelt as Democratic candidate for re-election. He will have spirited opposition, especially from the anti-administration Democrats of New York headed by Al. Smith, and from the Georgians captained by Governor Talmadge, but impartial observers can see no other outcome than his nomination.

There is nothing sure in regard to the Republican candidate. In fact, that party is still looking for a strong man who would make an attractive candidate. There are a number of aspirants, but there is no special enthusiasm over any of them. The most prominent in the list is Senator Borah, who lacks nothing in ability and oratorical power, but he would be anathema to the powerful conservative elements of the party on account of his sturdy insurgence. Colonel Frank Knox, able newspaper publisher and forceful personality, has been campaigning vigorously for the nomination, and his prospects are being scrutinized by the party managers.

Another Republican contender is Governor Landon of Kansas. In the background, of course, is former President Hoover, but there is little betting that he will be nominated. So far, the choice seems to lie between Landon and Knox, and unless the New Deal has pulled the popularity of the present administration down to zero, political prophets hesitate to predict that either of them, if nominated, would defeat Roosevelt.

But irrespective of the choice of candidates, or the measure in which the president has retained his popularity, prediction of the result of the coming election must remain hazardous. Governments, whether good or bad, pay heavy penalties at the polls during hard times. In Canada only one administration has been re-elected during the last four years. This was the Taschereau government in Quebec which managed to get back into office with a majority so narrow that its future is very precarious. President Roosevelt may make the grade, but if he should do so, he will have performed an unusual feat, the performance being facilitated largely by the weakness of his opposition.

CANADA'S NATIONAL PARKS

THE VALUE OF CANADA'S NATIONAL PARKS as a tourist attraction is clearly indicated in the annual report of the commissioner, J. B. Harkin, which covers the fiscal year ending March 31, 1935. The number of visitors to the parks, in every part of the Dominion, numbered 710,778 as compared with 593,774 for the corresponding period of 1933-34, a gain of nearly 20 per cent. This constitutes a new record for parks visitors, and at a time when economic conditions appeared to have made serious inroads on tourist travel.

These figures, The London Free Press observes, show quite clearly the ever-growing interest in the national parks system. And this interest is by no means confined to Canadians alone, as is demonstrated by the yearly increase in the number of visitors from the United States and from overseas. A comparison of the number of visitors for the fiscal year 1914-15 and the latest comparative period gives some idea of the increased interest. In 1914-15 a total of 56,064 persons visited the national parks, while for the most recent period the number, as previously stated, was more than 710,000.

In connection with the matter of visitors it is interesting to note that the park which attracted the most visitors during the year was the nearby Point Pelee. There were more than 207,000 visitors to this delightful western Ontario park, nearly four times as many as visited all the national parks in the 1914-15 year. Banff, Alberta, was second in point of attraction of visitors with 142,774 and Riding Mountain, in southern Manitoba, third, with just above 100,000.

Of course the increased use of the motor car and the improvement and increase in park highways have had much to do with attracting guests. There are now 554 miles of standard all-weather roads in the various parks, in addition to 110 miles of secondary roads, and an additional 120 miles of highways still to be constructed in the projects now under way.

During the fiscal year covered by the commissioner's latest report a total of $2,434,402 was expended on national park projects, out of a total appropriation of $3,784,399. Of the total appropriation, $593,000 was made available under the Relief Act, 1934, of which $515,000 was expended to give employment to 6,387 individuals.

It is plain from Mr. Harkin's report that Canada's national parks system should be profitably expanded. As tourist attractions they much more than pay for themselves, and in view of the general appreciation throughout Canada of the value of the tourist business, it may be expected that the federal government in co-operation with the provincial authorities will enlarge its system from Pacific to the Atlantic. Vancouver Island offers several magnificent areas for this purpose, while there are similar opportunities on the mainland. Every dollar expended on these projects backed by effective publicity work helps to overcome the adverse trading balance which otherwise must mark commercial relations between this Dominion and the United States for many years.

The word "radio" has now been made King's English. Eastern newspapers have been noting that King Edward in his international broadcast a week ago Sunday made reference to the "radio." The approved term in England has been the "wireless," which to persons on this continent has seemed less specific than the word "radio" in general use with us, for the former includes wireless telegraphy and telephone as well as the broadcasting and making audible of musical and other programmes.

LET THE PEOPLE DECIDE
The Toronto Globe

The beverage rooms have had what was asked for them: a fair trial. The public has reached an opinion on this wholesale method of selling beer and the more restricted sale of wine, and it appears certain that the bulk of public opinion is strongly against the plan. However, this can be ascertained only by a straight vote on the question. Opponents of the beverage room system of sale are somewhat encouraged by Premier Hepburn's statement to a delegation that he is willing now to give "more consideration" to the question of a province-wide referendum on the sale of beer by the glass.

SHE'S STILL WHAT SHE USED TO BE
The Regina Leader Post

How much smarter are our legislators than many of the old women whose names and deeds may spring to the mind of the reader? Some of these old women may be much smarter than our legislators. Many a woman of seventy-five can look after a house, do the cooking, scold the old man from his place in front of the stove and send him off to the chores, out-talk a couple of insurance salesmen or bill collectors, bake the finest bread and apple pie in Canada, quilt a couple of well-patterned comforters, kick the cat into the woodshed, and still have enough energy left to grab the broom and bash in the head of any legislator who might refer to her slightly as an old woman. The Leader-Post would like to warn our legislators against getting too flippant with the old women. The old women, after all, may really be the backbone of the country—not the jawbone.

Across The Bay

Mr. Pattullo, perpetually youthful, is more philosophic than in olden times—and his day in the House passes off quietly.

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

IF YOU have watched the first citizen of British Columbia in action over the years you will have observed three distinct phases in his career as a parliamentarian and an orator. In these galleries we remember first Mr. Pattullo's old days in the rear row of the treasury benches, when he was Minister of Lands, and one of the least articulate voices in that long-lived ministry. He spoke rapidly then, nervously and jerkily, the words tumbling over themselves. But that didn't matter much because the deep bellow of old John Oliver, like the bay of a wounded bear, drowned out nearly everything that came from the back treasury benches.

Then there was the opposition phase. In opposition Mr. Pattullo had time off from departmental work to polish up his oratory, to coin phrases often memorable, usually very disconcerting to the Toimie government. In opposition he rose to his peak as one of the best speakers known within these halls.

PHILOSOPHER

BUT MONDAY in the House we found him in his third phase. In what you might call the philosophic phase. Here was a man sobered by the responsibilities of office, roused by bitter criticism, but mellowed by life. Gone were the purple passages, the fulminations and the lava flow. Gone was any attempt at oratory or spectacle.

It was the Premier's day in the House, all other business being set aside for it, an important occasion, with galleries filled and members expectant. But the Premier chose to speak quietly, with restraint, in the simplest language, his old boyishness dimmed a little, perhaps, but with all his old force and confidence.

He is older, too, than in the old days. Greier and his curly hair is thinner, but as he stood up to face the House and give an account of his stewardship he was probably the youngest man of sixty-three west of the Rockies, or east of them for that matter. His cheeks were pink and smooth as a baby's, his eyes flashing, his heavy chin outthrust, his body hard and lean. And he was superbly turned out, as ever, in semi-formal black coat and grey trousers with the first purple violets of a late spring in his buttonhole. On such occasions he is at his best, a bonny fighter, who asks no quarter, a better man than most of his enemies.

DEFENCE

HIS SPEECH, which he kept down to fifty minutes because of a noticeable shortness of voice, would disappoint anyone who had come expecting news of moment or grisly revelations. It was devoted almost entirely to an account of the government's work, and his long recital of the last interprovincial conference, while essential to an understanding of the last year's progress, tended to wear out the pace.

His enemies in the party he ignored completely. As for his enemies on the outside, they would have their chance in June at the by-elections of Burrard and Omineca but about them the government wasn't worrying, though the Premier admitted with surprising candor that in his experience it was poor politics to delay by-elections in this way because the longer you put them off the more likely you were to be beaten. The C.C.F. smiled faintly.

WAGER

THE PREMIER's old and highly-esteemed friend and enemy, Mr. Pooley, interrupted to invite Mr. Pattullo to come up and see him sometime about the by-elections. At once the stern look of a government leader in the act of leading a government dropped from the face of the Premier. He said he would indeed come up and see Mr. Pooley which to the cognoscenti, meant that, as usual, they would have a little bet on the result of the polls. At this very moment, though the Premier didn't know it, Mr. Pooley was admitting privately in a note to the inquiring press gallery that he had already lost one bet with the Premier this session. Last week Mr. Pooley bet Mr. Pattullo there would be thirty organizations in British Columbia in favor of health insurance. Ruefully, the elder statesman from Esquimalt admitted that eighty women's institutes, which he had failed to consider, had beaten him. The Pooley hat will be presented to Dr. Weir, father of the health insurance bill.

IN THE SUMMER

A PART FROM the announcement about June by-elections, which had been anticipated, the Premier revealed little of his counsel. He couldn't, he said, until his negotiations with the federal government were further advanced; but he paused suddenly, left his prepared address, and thundered out, the ringing voice of old opposition days, that before the summer was over he would come to grips with things and know where he stood. And in another extemporaneous passage he cried: "I know we are going to do something. I am not sure what it is, Mr. Speaker, but I know we are going to do something!"

The fall session, it turned out, was not to be an extra session, merely the spring session moved forward, as honorable members will not get an extra indemnity, merely an early one. But the Premier left that up to the members bluntly by telling them that they didn't need to accept the money if they didn't want to; they could merely adjourn their present session and receive no payment in the autumn. The offer was not immediately accepted.

PATIENCE

IT IS NOT given to all men, the Premier concluded, to be as patient as the Premier is. In little matters he is still impatient but in larger ones, in waiting for Ottawa to move, he is patience incarnate, grim, tight-lipped a very well of silence. He probably could wish that the public had some of that quality when it waits for Victoria to move but he evidently doesn't expect it. All he asked was for a little patience because he believed all things would yet work out to the advantage of British Columbia. And on this note the long debate on the Speech from the Throne ended and Mr. Hart moved the question of resolutions about granting supply to His Majesty, which meant that the budget, a stop-gap affair, to hold us until the autumn, is coming down.

HOT AIR

To the Editor:—Referring to the letter from C. Thomas in your paper of March 7 it is unfortunate that in accusing "Missourian" of attempting to reconcile the irreconcilable, Mr. Thomas should have chosen to use the phrase, "my country, right or wrong," is native to the United States but common to all countries. It seems that a simple explanation, the simpler the better, should be offered to Mr. Thomas and the Youth Action Forum for which he speaks. In seeking for a medium, therefore, through which the matter at issue may be clarified, one chooses the humble potato, to which the intelligence to be enlightened should be equal. Research among the unbiased authorities on the potato but useful tuber yields the information that it is native to South America, but its present-day ubiquity may permit the claim that it is common to all countries.

As regards the sentiment, "my country, right or wrong," it is merely one among many cheap sophistries broadcast by those who wish to have their fighting done for them. Experience

Again, if they are nothing more than a group of semi-intellectuals who have read the odd book, and are attempting to attract attention to themselves, they should choose a topic which would be of interest to all: a subject which they at least know something of, instead of their present theme, which I am sure they are ignorant of.

They are just hood-winking a certain group who "fall for their line," and who have nothing more to do than to write letters to the press, thereby creating a nuisance not only to the readers of your excellent paper but also to your competent staff.

HEALTH INSURANCE

To the Editor:—Would the views of a worker, be of interest to our self-appointed anti-Health Insurance champions?

The average wage-earner today, when his health begins to fail, tries to cure himself with such patent medicine as he can find the money for. The family budget can make no provision for luxuries like medical attention.

If he is still on his feet and working he hasn't the nerve to pay for doctor and medicine and take the remnant of his wages home to the wife to try to run the house on. So he puts up with his increasing disability, and finally breaks down. The doctor is called in to a hopeless case—a clergyman and then the undertaker, who puts the lid on him, and his worry, too, he hope.

His family won't forget him for a long time. Accounts rendered will take care of that. And now, it is proposed to give medical attention to our family and selves at small cost when we are ailing, and not have to wait until we are dying. Isn't this government of the people and for the people?

We are aware there is a class which is determined to wreck this scheme if possible. They had better not succeed. In the meantime, I hope Health Insurance starts soon. There is a customer waiting.

SECTIONALISM IS ATTACKED

Premier Replies to Stand Taken in Regard to Vancouver Island

Premier Pattullo made a strong reply yesterday to attempts of members to incite sectionalism by suggesting that Vancouver Island had not been fairly treated by the government.

He described these references as "parochial and circumscribed," and only intended to excite the prejudices of the people when the facts did not justify it.

"Hon. members say that Vancouver Island has not been properly treated. I submit that it has been."

If they wished to work out this sectionalist idea, members would find that the Island district, with its big smelter, contributed more than it received. The Queen Charlotte Islands poured in millions of dollars to the treasury from its timber. And the vast north country sent more millions in to Victoria and Vancouver.

Herbert Anscombe, of Victoria, had advocated on one hand that provincial borrowings and expenditures should be curtailed. On the other he had proposed large expenditures on a road the length of Vancouver Island.

There was inconsistency in this kind of criticism.

Victoria, as capital city, received large expenditures it would not otherwise, he said. There was a large government payroll here and thousands of dollars were spent annually here by people coming to do business with the government.

Spend All Spare Time In Garden To Ward Off Weeds and Insects

Editor's Note—This is the sixth of a series of articles on gardening by budget.

By PROF. C. H. NISSLEY

The more you spend in the garden, the greater will be your return. There is always something to do in the garden.

First plan your garden on paper, drawing it to scale if possible. With the aid of best experience and a good seed catalogue, you will have a lot of satisfaction in planning your garden, deciding on the varieties, distances of planting, and continuation of successive cropping, so that your fall garden may be as valuable, if not more so, than your spring or mid-summer garden.

Cultivation is very important, not only in keeping down weeds, which compete with vegetables, but also in keeping the soil loose, and allowing air to gain access to the roots. Cultivate the garden fairly deeply, but guard against cutting off feeding roots.

Insects must be controlled. The most effective material to use for insects which eat the leaves, or are located above ground, is a pyrethrum dust or liquid spray. Pyrethrum is not poisonous to human beings.

During prolonged dry weather, irrigation is very beneficial. Water in the soil is necessary to dissolve the nutrients and make them available for plant use. Without moisture, plants cannot grow.

Mulching the garden soil is recommended. A mulch is nothing more than a covering over the ground. It may consist of straw, manure, salt hay, reed grass, or even paper.

The mulch allows moisture to reach the plants during rainstorms and retards evaporation. It will discourage weeds and keep tomatoes, peppers, and eggplants clean. Greater yields can be expected from mulched plants.

Harvest peas, beans and other crops before they become too old and lose their good quality. After harvesting the peas and beans, spade under the tops. These tops provide organic material for the soil. A few days later, seeds of plants of a fall crop may be planted.

The gardener who has especially high-productive plants of tomatoes, eggplants, peppers, or other garden crop should save some of the seed, as

The tomato fruit worm also attacks sweet corn and cotton. The only way to combat these pests is to watch for them constantly, hand-pick and kill them.

Improved strains of varieties are often obtained in this way.

The fall garden is as important as the spring garden, especially for root crops, which may be stored during the winter either in the outdoor pit or in the storage cellar.

Have a compost box four feet square and about four feet high, made of planks. During the year, grass clippings, leaves, and other rubbish from the garden may be thrown into this compost box, and considerable organic matter may be saved to use either in the ground or as a mulch the following year.

FINANCE DRIVE IS UNDER WAY

Ninety-nine Pledges Total $1,268 at First Campaign Supper Meeting

As the annual Y.M.C.A. financial drive got underway yesterday evening at an initial supper meeting held in Spencer's dining-room, Duncan McBride, major of "C" division, received the lighthouse symbol of having acquired the highest total in pledge value with $308.50. His division reported a total of twenty-two pledges and $88.50 in cash.

Receipts totaled at the initial meeting showed ninety-nine pledges valued at $1,268 and $687.50 in cash, with the special names committee reporting seventeen pledges valued at $654.50 and $274.50 in cash.

In the first meeting of the 1936 campaign compared well with the corresponding meeting of last year, while the number of pledges and cash totaled was slightly under the corresponding figures last year.

E. G. Robertson, major of "Y" division, came second in the race for campaign honors, his group totaling a value of $103, representing twenty-two pledges and highest cash total of $117.

R. J. Fatt of "Y" division was presented with the golden sole, symbol of the best report of the captains of all divisions, by campaign chairman, Mayor David Leeming.

Mr. Pooley to Pay For Hat

But Dr. Weir Gets It, Not the Premier, When Esquimalt Member Loses His Wager

"Eighty Women's Institutes beat me," said R. H. Pooley, K.C., Unionist, Esquimalt, when he confessed he had lost his bet that the government could not show thirty organizations in support of health insurance. He made the wager in the House last week.

"I've told Dr. Weir he can order a new bonnet and charge it to me," said the Esquimalt member.

Mr. Pooley's bet was taken by the Premier on behalf of his colleague, so Dr. Weir gets the hat, he explained.

"M." in charge of Warren W. Martin, reported twenty-three pledges valued at $131 and $48 in cash.

In his address to the campaigners, Mayor Leeming, chairman of the drive, outlined the benefits given the boys and young men of greater Victoria by the work of the Y.M.C.A.

Frank Paulding, general secretary of the "Y," gave instructions concerning the campaign, which will terminate with a final supper meeting next Monday.

W. T. Straith spoke of the boys' camp as being the greatest new permanent asset to Y.M.C.A. work and said $500 of the objective of $8,300 would go toward camp equipment.

ALBERTA BUDGET DEBATE IS ENDED

Edmonton, March 10.—Defeating a non-confidence amendment moved by G. H. Van Allen, Liberal, Edmonton, by a vote of fifty-one to six, the Alberta Legislature yesterday finished debate on the budget speech and proceeded to deal with estimates for the next fiscal year opening April 1.

The debate was one of the shortest in years, taking only five days, during which ten addresses were delivered. Five of the speakers were from the government side, three being cabinet ministers.

AUTONOMY FOR ISLAND THEME

Alan Chambers Says Unfair Treatment Given in Government Expenditure

Vancouver Island pays to the provincial treasury $1 for every $3 contributed by the mainland but receives in expenditure only $1 for every $10 it contributes, said Alan Chambers, speaking to Ward One Liberal Association yesterday evening.

Of $116,293,000 spent on highway construction and maintenance in the province since 1917, Vancouver Island had contributed $24,000,000, enough to pave 90 per cent of all the government roads on the island, he said.

From the Port Renfrew area, he continued, the government had received $2,400,000 in timber licenses and $1,600,000 in royalties but had not returned more than $100,000 and Port Renfrew, like the rest of Vancouver Island, was still waiting for the west coast road.

Stressing that his remarks did not apply to any political party in particular, he said there was need for unity in political thought designed to promote the welfare of the island.

ISLAND BLOC IN HOUSE

This policy should embody the formation of an island bloc of members in the Legislature, whose first concern would be a new deal for Vancouver Island. The people of the island should develop an island consciousness. And the final objective should be autonomy for the island as a separate province within Confederation.

Needs of the island were different than the mainland, Mr. Chambers said. It should be developed as a place of settlement for persons retired from active business. To this end a co-operative policy for the encouragement of the tourist industry was essential. Revision of death duties, highway construction and park development were necessary.

VARIETY FOR BAY CONCERT

Light and Operatic Selections to Be Presented By Beaver Club Friday

In the preparation of the operatic portion of the Hudson's Bay Company's Beaver Club concert to be given in the Shrine Auditorium on Friday, the club has had the capable assistance of Percy Mickleburgh, who has had a wealth of experience in the production of operas by amateur organizations.

With his help the Beaver Club choir will endeavor to bring an informality to the second part of its programme that will give the rendering of the operatic gems greater realism. The concert will be given in aid of the Queen Alexandra Hospital for crippled children.

The second part of the programme is divided into two divisions, the first of which is given to opera. The second division is in lighter vein. A quartette known as the Four Mills Brothers will provide some excellent entertainment. This quartette comprises W. Miles, V. Zala, L. Baker and T. Boulden. A dance team, comprising Myrtle Lyle and Irene Stewart will provide another feature. During the singing of a waltz number from "The Quaker Girl," Daisy Borrowman and Jack Harvey will present a dance feature, while the programme will be brought to a grand close with the choir singing the famous "Bridal Chorus" from Cowen's "Rose Maiden."

COURT ORDERS FARM CLOSED

Saanich Council Rules Fox Farm License to Be Cancelled Dec. 31, 1938

The license for the Saanich Fox Farm will be cancelled on December 31, 1938, it was announced by the Saanich council yesterday evening. In rendering its judgment as a court of inquiry on recent complaints which described the farm as a nuisance to adjacent residents.

In setting the date the council felt that thirty-three months would provide ample time for the farm owner, Miss C. L. Stephenson, to sell out and vacate the property.

While the court was satisfied the complainants had established proof of the nuisance of the odor emanating from the farm, there was no desire to act in an arbitrary way which might cause serious loss to the owner.

TELLS OF TRIP
ON CONTINENT

Mrs. J. O. Cameron Describes Tour Through Seven Nations

"Europe has not the natural beauty that you will find on this continent, in the Grand Canyon and Yellowstone Park, for instance, but I loved seeing the scenery and the people. The men had made," said Mrs. J. O. Cameron, who returned Friday from an extended tour, in an interview yesterday.

Mrs. Cameron left Victoria at the end of September, and traveled through England, Belgium, Germany, Czechoslovakia, Austria, Switzerland and France.

She stayed for three months in London, a week in Paris, four days in Vienna, and for short periods in Brussels, Cologne, Leipzig, Dresden, Prague, Salzburg, Innsbruck and Zurich.

"London is my favorite city," she said. "I was told that you had to learn to like it, but in spite of terrible weather I liked it right away." Because of floods and intense cold Mrs. Cameron was unable to see as much of England as she wished, visiting only Ely, Cambridge, Eton, and the little village of Worden on the Great North Road, noted for its beautiful church.

CANADA WELL REPRESENTED

"One thing I did appreciate in England was the type of people representing Canada at British Columbia House and Canada House," she said, and mentioned the kindness of W. A. McAdam and R. D. Rowe, the Canadian timber commissioner.

Mrs. Cameron was in London for the musical season, attending three concerts at the Albert Hall. She also witnessed many plays.

"The musical comedies are not up to the standard of New York, but I do like the way they put on plays there," Mrs. Cameron mentioned especially a wonderful performance she had seen of Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet."

During her tour of the continent, on which she traveled alone, and which she describes as a great adventure, Mrs. Cameron was pursued by bad weather, although the cold was drier and she found it more tolerable than England, because the continental buildings were well heated, while those of London were, she said, apparently not heated at all.

All over the continent Mrs. Cameron found a general and rather indefinite feeling of tension, although she saw no actual signs of disturbance.

Paris Mrs. Cameron described as a lovely city, but without the feeling of security to be found in London.

In Vienna she attended a performance of Franz Lehar's latest opera, excellently staged. Mrs. Cameron sailed from Canada on the Canadian Pacific liner Montcalm, and returned by way of New York on the Majestic, on the great ship's last westbound trip before going into retirement.

Miss Katherine Soala has returned to her home on Oscar Street after being a patient in St. Joseph's Hospital for the past two weeks.

"A Unique Experience"

LAST May, when I lectured in New England, I sought to rent the Y.M.C.A. Auditorium in Springfield but failed, they thinking the connection might reflect unfavorably on the "Y." We took the ballroom of Hotel Kimball. Mr. Hoover, "Y" General Secretary, attended my lecture and asking permission to speak, told of his refusal of the auditorium, but he said he had written the "Y" Secretary in Toronto who replied: "Doctor Jackson is a respected citizen of Toronto with whom the 'Y' need not hesitate to cooperate."

Mr. Hoover began using Doctor Jackson products and within a month found such benefit that he wrote to engage me as sole speaker during "Y" Health Week in October. I spoke nightly in a "Y" addressed "Rotary Kiwanis" and "Exchange" Clubs. The latter broadcast my address over a chain of three colleges, one Junior High and two High Schools. All Service Clubs stated attendance was the largest in months. At Rotary a prominent M.D. who had beside me, stood and eulogized my work "which in no way conflicts with conventional practice, which concerns itself with disease, while Doctor Jackson's work is devoted to teaching health, and he does it mightily well because he demonstrates in his own remarkable body the truth of that teaching."

The things that M.D. said about the health value of Roman Meal, Rekus-Puddy, Lishus and Kofy-Sub would be doubted if said by me, yet even he told not half. Only those who regularly use them can best realize the value of Doctor Jackson foods. But I never urge my food: upon anyone. I only urge everyone just give them a reasonable trial and note results, especially the increased bowel action and increased sense singing of a hymn, "Stand Up, Stand Up for Jesus." The Scripture reading was from Matthew 11 and Romans 11, the theme being "Must I be a better man before I become a Christian." A prayer, delivered by Rev. Leung closed the worship period.

An address by Ernest Lowe laid emphasis on the importance of the value of the Chinese language, especially to Chinese Canadians. No Gee also spoke.

Miss Scott read a chapter on "Protestantism" from the study book, "Our Church." A hearty sing-song followed.

During the business period it was moved to invite Jim Lang to speak on some of his adventures in Shanghai at next meeting. Members chosen to speak also were Misses Mabel and Ida Clark and Misses Mabel and Ida Clark. The meeting was closed by the singing of the hymn "Jesus Calls Us."

JUNIOR W.A. TO HOLD STYLE TEA

The Junior W.A. to St. Joseph's Hospital at its meeting yesterday evening voted a further instalment of $100 towards the short wave therapy which the auxiliary is purchasing for the hospital.

This sum was voted from the proceeds of the recent successful spinners' ball, which netted $138.10, as shown in the report presented by Miss Margaret Vantricht, convenor.

It was decided to postpone the Hobby Show planned for April until next fall, and instead arrange a children's Easter tea and fashion show. A committee headed by Miss Alice Baines was appointed to make arrangements for the tea. Miss Kathleen Cullum, Miss Dorothy Baxendale and Miss Dorothy Freeman are on the committee.

A scavenger hunt will be held by the auxiliary on Friday, March 20, under the direction of Miss Rhoda Goward, the president, and Miss Nan Eve. Those taking part will meet at the home of Mrs. Gordon Peterson, Orchard Avenue, at 8 o'clock on the evening of the hunt. Mrs. Peterson has kindly opened her home for the occasion, and she will serve refreshments later in the evening. Prizes will be awarded the winners.

PHILOSOPHY OF LIFE NEEDED

Dr. H. R. Anderson Talks to "Y" Senior Business Girls' Group

Character is the keynote of charm, according to Dr. Henrietta Anderson at the Y.W.C.A. on Monday evening in the concluding lecture of a series of weekly charm talks, sponsored by the Senior Girls' Business Club.

In her humorous and sound talk on "A Philosophy of Life," Dr. Anderson pointed out that all qualities depend upon one, the inner quality of life. She quoted the well-known passage, "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he," and reminded the audience that Christ had stressed this truth repeatedly in His teachings.

Defining a philosophy as a sort of creed in which one fervently believes, although it does not necessarily have any connection with church going, Dr. Anderson suggested that it is a good thing to acquire such a philosophy early in life. If developed late in life it is too late to be much good, and it is also inclined to be a bit warped because it has grown out of experience, instead of being a philosophy which shapes one's experiences, she said.

Dr. Anderson passed on two philosophies which she has given to many of her pupils. The first is: "You can get anything out of life if you really want it badly enough to pay the price." In this connection, the speaker thought a good deal of sympathy had been misplaced during the depression, because the young, although they have hardships to face, have a higher standard of life than a past generation, and because they will weather this depression, come through to good times and possibly face another depression before their life is ended. The people for whom she felt sorry, she said, were those who had been out of work for several years, whose savings were all gone and who were too old ever to be absorbed into industry again.

The second philosophy is: "You get out of life just exactly what you put in." The speaker maintained that she had found these philosophies 100 per cent true, and although the time element enters in, hard work will insure getting what one wants.

Her third philosophy Dr. Anderson did not formulate until she was older. Growing out of the difficulties which she met on the way, this philosophy expressed a safe formula for avoiding mistakes. It is: "Of the biggest things in life is to see the other person's point of view and to see yourself quite clearly."

If the womanhood of the world would take this philosophy seriously there would be a marvelous regeneration, Dr. Anderson said. She pointed to the opportunities of girls' clubs and organizations which were linked with a responsibility, not faced by the generation which was shielded from life.

"I like to think of life as a challenge," said Dr. Anderson in conclusion. "It's all ahead of you waiting, yours to do what you will with it. Take it and feel that it is yours."

Dr. Anderson was introduced by Miss Margaret Ryan, senior girls' secretary, and was thanked on behalf of the other girls by Miss Edna Teagle, secretary-treasurer of the Y Girls' Council. Miss Wilma Graham, who has been giving voluntary service in club work, announced the week-end conference March 28 and 29, when Miss Hoberker of Toronto, national general secretary of the Y.W.C.A., will be here.

At the close of the lecture, the Senior Business Girls' Club entertained the audience at an informal reception. Mrs. Walter Cushing, general secretary, and Mrs. Gibbs, presided at the supper table, and Mrs. J. Titterton assisted. Members of the Y Owens Club assisted the senior girls in serving.

J. P. McGowan Tells of Wonderful Advance Made in Local Picture Industry

"The advance made in the community's youngest industry—motion picture production—is nothing short of remarkable," said J. P. McGowan, Central Films actor, in speaking on the Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce broadcast yesterday evening over C.F.C.T.

Mr. McGowan gave a brief review of the motion picture industry, from its origination fifty years ago, and of its advance to one of the greatest enterprises in the world.

The speaker asserted that if the present rate of progress continued on Vancouver Island, motion pictures should become a permanent and successful industry.

Miss Flossie Barton and Charles Sherrett, who are playing the leading roles in "Gunsmoke" and "Secret Patrol," were present and introduced to the radio public.

Local Council Will Notify Ottawa That Woman Examiner Essential Here; Wild Flower Preservation Urged at Meeting

The Local Council of Women will send a protest to the Federal Minister of Customs against the proposed abolition of the post of special woman customs examiner at the Port of Victoria.

The matter was brought to yesterday's meeting of the council by Miss Foxall, who read an official letter from the customs department announcing the step. In the discussion which it aroused, it was pointed out that a woman examiner was absolutely necessary, particularly as the customs examiners have the right of personal search.

The council will renew its annual campaign for the preservation of the wild flowers of the island, and will approach the parks committee with a suggestion that steps be taken to secure the enforcement of the by-law forbidding the picking of wild flowers in the public parks.

BEACON HILL PARK
Mrs. Hugh Mackenzie reported the meeting of a big delegation from various organizations with the Parks Board at Beacon Hill Park last month, in connection with the proposed development of the park and waterway. Alderman James Adam assured the delegation that before any plan is proceeded with, the Parks Board will consult with Mrs. Mackenzie and her committee to ascertain their views she stated.

TRAFFIC SAFETY

Mrs. D. L. MacLaurin reported the result of her interview with Dr. S. J. Willis concerning the suggestion that some instruction to ensure safety for both pedestrian and driver be included in the revised High School curricula. She will also bring up the matter with the City School Board.

This was a part of modern education that should be recognized, and even if a full course were not possible, she hoped that a beginning would be made with the introduction of the subject into the schools next September, said Mrs. MacLaurin. The course proposed is one that has been outlined by the American Automobile Association, and is claimed by Mrs. MacLaurin to be the best now available.

The C.P.C. plan to assist tubercular patients returning home after treatment, and faced with the problem of mal-nutrition was brought to the attention of the council. The matter was referred to the public health committee, of which Miss Cressor, B.N. convenor.

Mrs. J. W. Gibson presented the thanks of Mrs. Bertha Rogers was thanked for her very successful convenership of the tea at the annual meeting, which netted sufficient to cover the expenses of the meeting.

Mrs. H. M. Cassidy reported on the committee meeting which discussed the proposed Y.W.C.A. code for household workers.

All members of the council were invited to attend the annual meeting of the Provincial Council to be held in the Y.W.C.A. on Thursday morning at 10 o'clock and again in the afternoon at 2 o'clock. Dr. Olga-Jedine, Mrs. Alfred Carmichael, Mrs. Wm. Grant, Mrs. D. L. MacLaurin and Mrs. C. C. Spofford were named delegates to the Provincial meeting.

These delegates were instructed to ask that the British Columbia cabinet be urged to take action for the preservation of Cathedral Grove.

Correspondence included a letter from Mrs. A. C. Bagley, Provincial president, concerning the arrangements for the Provincial Council meeting held this week. The Kiwanis Club also invited the council to send a representative to the meeting to consider the erection of a convention hall and ice arena in the city.

Announcement was made that Professor Angus will address a special meeting of the Local Council at the Y.W.C.A. on Monday afternoon, March 23, when he will speak on "Proposed Amendments to the B.N.A. Act." All members are urged to attend.

WORKROOM APPEAL
Miss Ogilvie spoke briefly on the Women's Workroom, soliciting the support of the women's organizations in this most necessary undertaking. She appealed to the women to help by sending occasional mending or ordering new garments, elders down to be covered, and similar jobs to the workroom where nearly eighty women are employed. Members were also asked to assist in the tax day on March 21.

Miss Bruce brought to the attention of the gathering the need for the enforcement of the by-law governing the expectation of public places, and it was decided to approach the City Council on the matter.

To Give Reports—The social meeting of Queen of the Island L.O.B.A. will be held in the Orange Hall, Courtney Street, on Wednesday, March 11, at 7.30 p.m., as the report on the recent Grand Lodge sessions will be given. The meeting will be followed by court waltz at 8.45 and refreshments will be served. All members are requested to attend.

Summer Sweethearts

By Mabel McElliott

Then she was in his arms again, half-weeping, wholly absorbed in the old, old, ever-new story. But they were getting nowhere in the argument.

She telephoned Bertine, with some garbled hazy account of a forgotten appointment and hung up the receiver with shaking fingers. Michael waited for her in the foyer of the little hotel.

"We can't lunch here," he said. "But the man says there's a tea-room down the street..."

She laughed on a note of excitement. "Let's dash there, then. I'm starving."

Over an omelette and rolls and tea their eyes and hands met. "Our wedding luncheon," Katharine said. "How strange fate was! Only this morning she had planned never to see Michael Heatheroe again."

"Now, my darling, you must really let me go," she pleaded, when he paid the check and they had wandered out again into the hot bright sunshine of mid-afternoon. Two children with bursting paper bags came out of a grocery store to regard the pair with curious, interested eyes.

Michael laughed, tucking her hand in his. "I'm coming back to Innislock with you," he said.

"Oh, you can't, really." There was terror in her tone.

"Oh, yes, I can," he said gayly. "I haven't done a thing to be ashamed of."

She whirled on him. "You mean—you mean you tricked me into this?"

CHAPTER XXV

Michael said quietly, "Tricked you? No."

"But you did!" Katharine insisted. Her eyes were wide with a sort of horror. "Oh, if you knew you'd nothing to fear why did you make me come off with you like this? You said you wouldn't go unless I went with you."

"Because," the man said with deliberation, "I loved you."

"Ah, that!" She struck one palm against another, as if in fury. "It is a queer sort of love that doesn't trust—let's open and aboveboard."

"This is," persisted Michael Heatheroe. "Ah, don't let anything come between us now..."

"But why the detectives?" pursued Katharine, in that bewildered tone. "Why should they be looking for you, without reason?"

"We can go back," the man said quietly, "and find out what it's all about."

It had been different when she had thought she was racing off with a vagabond, a fugitive. The whole affair had worn a sort of brave air. Now—what could she say to her had married Sally Moon's fiancé, Katharine Strykhurst, the girl who inspired a jilt.

"I hate you!" she cried wildly, striking at the hand she had caressed five minutes before.

"No, you don't, Katharine," she thrust him away. "I do. I swear it."

She was close to tears—perilous, angry, choking tears. But she would not let them come. "What they'll say of me!" she raged. "And it will be true. A fool..."

"Does it matter?"

She did not deign to look at him. "Of course, it does."

"That, my dear Katharine," said the man beside her, in a coolly conversational tone, "is your trouble. You have a picture of yourself as others see you. You are continually altering that picture to suit your audience, living up to it. It's too hard. Snap out of it. Be yourself."

"Oh, oh!" she choked with rage. "How dare you talk like this to me? After all, I—"

The words almost flew out. "After all, I am your wife." But she checked them.

"I dare," said Michael Heatheroe. "because I love you. Don't shake your head. It's true. I've loved you since the first day I saw that mutinous red mouth and those contradictory, cool eyes of yours. I knew you were my girl... the only one I'd ever seen and wanted."

Some dangerous softness touched her heart, but she steered it against him.

"Good talk," she scoffed, "but it doesn't mean anything."

"Katharine—darling," he said, "don't be like this. You were so sweet a while back... I thought I had never known such sweetness. You were a statue come to life at last."

"I wish I were dead," she choked, in rage. "I'd better be."

What a strange wedding day! The sun had been out, but now the clouds were lowering. Thunder in the air! "Do you remember," he asked, "the day the rain drove us into the cabin?"

Mutinously she refused to answer. The drawing voice went on. "You were so high and mighty, Michael Heatheroe said, 'I longed to teach you a lesson. Little wildcat!'"

"But you didn't," taunted the girl. "You didn't dare."

"That was it," he told her. "I was—afraid of you."

She had kept her eyes resolutely ahead, but now almost against her will, she whirled and stared at him. The emotion that flared between them was at white heat... anger fused with love. Her composure broke. She was in his arms half-sobbing, half-laughing.

"We mustn't announce our marriage now."

The Country Doctor

A Novelization of Twentieth Century-Fox Film Starring the Dionne Quintuplets, Jean Harsholt, Dorothy Peterson, June Lang, Michael Whalen and Slim Sumnerville

CHAPTER XIV

"Of course, Mary, it's really none of my business," reflected the doctor, rubbing his chin. "But, by George! A fine lad like Tony, too! After all, he's my nephew! I know the kind of blood that's in that boy!" His tone softened. "Now, Mary," he went on, "suppose I were to get a letter now and then from Tony, and that letter was marked with a little sign, and I didn't read it, but just left it here on the table. And suppose you were to come in some evening and pick it up. I really wouldn't be having anything to do with it at all, would I?"

Mary leaned forward, a little nervous laugh just beating out a tendency to tears. "Would you, doctor?" she asked, eagerly.

"Well, now, something like that might happen. Of course you understand that if it did, I wouldn't have a thing to do with it," said the doctor, his eyes twinkling. "Come around as often as you can. And when you do, always take a look at the table over there. You never can tell."

Impulsively, Mary threw her arms around the little doctor's shoulders, gave him a resounding kiss and then fled.

"Well! Well! Well!" said the little doctor, and smiled.

And so it was arranged. Tony, hard at work as his medical studies neared their end, wrote often, and his letters, instead of being intercepted by the still embittered MacKenzie, came to rest on the doctor's table. Mary's calls became more and more frequent, and Dr. Luke's sly smile matched them in frequency.

Now the stream of reporters and photographers began to swell into a flood of promoters, theatrical agents, advertising men, and a whole horde of people who were curious, a little awed, and anxious to help.

By plane, by automobile, by carriage they came. Every boat brought a larger contingent, until the "North Star" was crowded to the rails on every trip. The tiny hotel at Moosetown and the larger one at North Bay were crowded.

Moosetown began to take on a holiday appearance with almost the atmosphere of a small-town country fair.

Barkers and novelty salesmen appeared on the street, and the corner drugstore sold more souvenirs than it did pain killers. Balloons, squawks guaranteed to emit a sound just like the quintuplets' lemonade, peanuts, popcorn, postcards, booklets containing "The Only Actual and Factual Account of the Amazing Birth of the Wyatt Quintuplets." The streets had a carnival aspect.

Every breakdown automobile in Moosetown and vicinity was pressed into service as a taxi. The road out to the Wyatt place was improved, partly for the convenience of Dr. Luke in his constant calls, and partly to accommodate the increasing traffic of people who thronged to the birthplace in the hope of getting just a glimpse of the miraculous babies.

Self-constituted "guides" took the curious in drives over the road to the Wyatts, there to point with an almost personal pride to the "long rows of diapers hanging behind the house, with improbable statistics thereon."

Greasy was in his element. Now that it had at last become possible for him to get out of Moosetown, he found it profitable to stay, and he stayed. With a placard stuck in the visor of his cap, a short megaphone, and a package of postcards, Greasy was easily first among the "guides."

He had unequalled nerve and a glib tongue, and he quickly ran sales into a pretty figure. Thus he was able to place the girl he had left behind him in Montreal with glowing and almost accurate accounts of the money he was making.

One day he met MacKenzie face to face on the main street of Moosetown. "Hey, Picklepus," he cried, shoving around as often as you can. And when you do, always take a look at the table over there. You never can tell."

Then he ducked quickly around a corner before MacKenzie could recover himself.

In the midst of all this hubbub, six people remained serene and above the turmoil. They were Dr. Luke and the five little girl babies who kicked and gurgled in new cribs at the Wyatt house.

The babies, of course, were completely unconscious of the fact that they were the centre of the loving attention of half a world. Daily they gained in weight, and put behind them the perils of babyhood. Only once was Dr. Luke genuinely alarmed.

The babies failed for several days to gain in weight, and were clearly not well. There were several anxious nights of sitting up, and Dr. Paul was hurriedly summoned from Montreal for consultation.

Then the babies began to gain weight and eat again, and it was clear that the crisis was passed.

"If we only had a hospital," Dr. John repeated for the thousandth time. "This is the result of an external infection. You know how careful we've been, with the screens, the sterile white robes, the masks. Yet we haven't been able to protect them."

"It is difficult," agreed Dr. Paul. "What a pity that the company hasn't been able to see it was clear—I suppose it's that old fog, Sir Basil. It does seem to me that they'd listen to you now, John, even if they wouldn't before."

"I'm plum tired of it," replied Dr. John, wearily. "I've tried and tried, made out report after report, even made that trip down to Montreal. But you know what happens. I'm just the old-fashioned country doctor, and—"

"Sometimes, John," Dr. Paul interposed, "I think you don't quite grasp the fact that this case is making medical history."

"Mmpf!" sniffed the doctor. "I don't like don't fool myself, Paul. I know I'm not a man of science. I haven't done anything of permanent value to research or to medical science."

Paul's rejoinder was quick and warm. "You've done something no other doctor in the world has ever done," he insisted. "You've kept quintuplets alive!"

Nurse Kennedy cut in sharply. "Yes," she said. "And he's done something nobody else ever did either. He's torn up or burned up about fifty thousand dollars!"

"Now, Katherine—" objected Dr. Luke, mildly.

"He certainly has," continued the nurse hotly. "Letters and telegrams asking him to endorse this or that 'Look at this one!' She produced a crumpled telegram. 'Ten thousand dollars for just endorsing Prune-O-Pop!'"

"Now, now! You know I couldn't do that, Katherine," fumed Dr. Luke. "Why not?" asked his brother amused.

"The babies don't like it!" snapped Dr. John.

Nurse Kennedy lifted her shoulders in an eloquent shrug that said more plainly than words, "You see? Now what can you do with a man like that?"

The three donned sterile white robes and went into the improvised "nursery" to watch the babies being given their "oil baths," a dabbling with olive oil on cotton swabs. Water was still thought too harsh for the tender skins. Already they had learned not to resent the operation, and all five were plainly developing and growing.

They're coming along splendidly, John, now that that last attack is behind them," said Dr. Paul. "I don't know of anything I could suggest that isn't being done."

The country doctor chuckled. "You're the first one I've heard say that," he said. "I've had plenty of advice, most of it smothered, and I'm all the more glad to get your professional opinion. I've had letters recommending watermelon juice, blackberry root, beetroot, asparagus and knotted. I've had letters protesting because we gave 'em all the fresh air we can, and letters complaining because we didn't move 'em outside in a tent in the first place. I'm glad to get one professional opinion that we're doing all right."

"I guess the babies themselves are the best answer," said Dr. Paul, leaning over a crib where one little girl kicked vigorously. Dr. John bent over also, and chuckled it lightly under the chin. The baby cooed and waved a hand.

The two men shed the white robes, and after parting instructions to Nurse Kennedy, walked out on the sagging porch of the Wyatt home.

"Paul, there was something I wanted to ask you about," began Dr. John diffidently. "I didn't like to speak of it, but—I wonder if you could let me have twenty dollars just for a few weeks."

"Of course," replied Dr. Paul, handing him the money with a chuckle. "What kind of extravagance are you going in for now?"

"For that license to practice," said the country doctor, gravely. "I guess I'd better get it before there's any more trouble about it. Say—" his voice became apprehensive. "You don't suppose there'll be any difficulty in my getting it, do you?"

His brother glanced back into the house, where came a lustrous trail.

"No, John," he answered, "I don't really think there'll be any trouble about it—now."

The two men idly watched a cow grazing among the sparse grass plots between the great rocks that dotted the adjoining field. A dusty car jounced along the road and squeaked to a halt at the Wyatt gate. One of Wyatt's neighbors leaned far out driver's seat and called to the doctor.

"Say, doc!" he shouted. "I just come from North Bay, and the telegraph operator told me there's a message for you. Come from the governor-general, he says. Wanted me to tell you to come into town right away and get it!"

Nurse Kennedy, who had come out on the porch with the other two, exchanged glances with Dr. Paul, an unspoken question in their eyes. But Dr. John remained unperturbed.

"No idea what kind of trouble this is," he said slowly. Then, with a twinkle in his eye, he continued, "Come on, let's get into town. Mustn't keep the governor-general waiting."

The Truth About Diet

By DR. MORRIS FISHEIN

When your doctor tells you to take a high vitamin diet, you should select the foods that are richest in the vitamins and add them to your regular diet.

Under these circumstances, remember that vitamin A is found most frequently in halibut liver oil, cod liver oil, butter and eggs. Vitamin D is most freely available in yeast or malt extracts and in the germ of the various grains.

Vitamin C is most profuse in orange or tomato juice and in the leafy green vegetables. D is had most easily in cod liver oil, but is now also available in vitamin D milks and similar preparations.

So far as is known, any good diet provides plenty of vitamin E. Practically a diet with plenty of meat, meat and fat, egg yolk, and milk. The second significant factor of vitamin B is present in eggs, milk and yeast.

Thus the addition of cod liver oil and yeast to any of the diets already mentioned will usually cover most of the requirements for vitamins.

It is always well to remember that persons who are dieting for any cause are in danger of developing vitamin deficiencies, and they should guard against such deficiencies by a liberal supply of the substances here mentioned.

For many persons who are generally low in health, for those who have developed weakness because of malnutrition or starvation, high vitamin menus are recommended. Following are some examples:

Breakfast—Orange juice (chilled); oatmeal with cream and sugar and a tablespoonful of cereal germ; two soft-boiled eggs; buttered toast; glass of milk.

Luncheon—Shredded pineapple (chilled); creamed salmon; baked potato and butter; buttered green peas; jelly vegetable salad with mayonnaise dressing; bread and butter; fresh ripe fruit; glass of milk.

Dinner—Melon cup; watermelon; cantaloupe and honeydew melon; beefsteak; baked potato with butter; stewed tomatoes; buttered spinach; fresh vegetable salad with French dressing; bran muffins with butter; ice cream with fresh fruit sauce; glass of milk.

TODAY'S HEALTH QUESTION

Q.—There is a cure for arthritis? A.—There is no single cure, but there are many different useful methods of treatment. These include not only drug treatments, but vaccines, physical therapy, heat applied in various forms, the application of orthopedic apparatus such as splints and braces, and sometimes complete control of diet, rest, exercise, etc. Every case should have individual study as to the factors involved, and should be treated accordingly.

See snails furnished the purple dye used in the robes of early royalty. So highly was this color valued that no one of lower rank than a prince could wear it, and transgressors of the law were liable to death sentences.

Arrangements Made For Britannia Road Races April 10

Senior Leaders Last Year Will Defend Laurels

THE SPORTS MIRROR

By PETE SALLAWAY

VICTORIA is still plenty basketball-minded as evidenced by the line-up of fans outside a sporting goods store yesterday morning waiting to purchase tickets for the B.C. championship finals at the High School Friday and Saturday night between the Canadian champion Dominos and Vancouver Province. The sale did not get under way until 9 o'clock, but the faithful were on hand shortly after 7 a.m. And several of them were mightily disappointed as only a few reserved seats were available, the season-ticket holders having gobbled up the majority.

The same trouble arises every season, but it is only fair that the fans who attend the games regularly should have first call when the season's plum comes along. Those who just want to go when the big games are scheduled must figure to take what they can get. Although the reserved seats have all been sold for both nights there will still be some standing room available at the door the nights of the games. So the Dominos are certain of having a packed house to support them as they open defence of their national title.

On hand today is the 1936 edition of the All Sports Record Book compiled and edited by Frank G. Menke, world-known sports authority. The new book, I believe, is an improvement over that of 1935. It contains new sports or subjects along the frontier of sportswriting are included. The volume contains the histories of practically every sport and includes many new tabulations and features, especially in the major sports, such as baseball, basketball, boxing, horse racing and track and field. The record book is the finest compact sports record book of its kind, in my opinion, and a great credit to its publisher.

When Joe Jerwa blasted home the goal that gave the New York Americans such a sweet victory over the New York Rangers on Sunday night, Lester Patrick must have left the rink talking to himself. It was a mighty important game for the Rangers and the loss meant their dropping down into the cellar of the American section of the National Hockey League, two points behind Boston, and lessened their chances considerably of making the play-offs. And the bitter pill for Patrick to swallow was that he had Jerwa on his team at one time. The silver-clad member of the Rangers has made some bad guesses in recent years on players. He let Paul Thompson get away to Chicago and the winger has developed into one of the finest in the league. The Art Coulter-Earl Siebert deal seems to have worked all to the advantage of Chicago. Coulter has shown little with the Rangers, while Siebert has been playing bang-up hockey for the Black Hawks.

Right now it looks like the Americans will make the play-offs for the second time in ten seasons. I hope they do. It will be a good thing for hockey. Red Dutton has made a good job of managing this hard-luck club and it will be a boost to him getting the club into the play-downs his first season as the manager. If the Americans make it, the other clubs will certainly have to watch young Sweeney Schriner, the league's leading scorer, and one of the finest prospects to hit the major circuit in years.

Manager Dutton is certainly proud of the development of this Calgary youngster. Schriner was rink rat at Calgary when Dutton was an idol with the Alberta fans. Dutton has had Schriner in hand all season. He has impressed the doctrine of clean play on the young centre and also the need of keeping himself physically fit. The main feature about Schriner's play is that he gets goals and, after all, that is what counts.

Routes Announced For Three Sections of Distance Classics on Holiday

EXPECT GOOD SCHOOL ENTRY

The annual Good Friday road races, sponsored by the Britannia Branch of the Canadian Legion, local unit No. 7, and sanctioned by the British Columbia section of the A.A.U., will be staged on Good Friday morning, April 10.

Archie McKinnon's Y.M.C.A. long-distance runners, who ran away with the bulk of honors in last year's classic, are entered to defend their titles. Strong contingents from Victoria schools are expected to provide good opposition against the "Y" runners.

The events cover three divisions: senior, for boys over eighteen; junior, for boys fourteen to eighteen; and juveniles, for boys fourteen and under.

RACE ROUTES

The distance of the senior event will be approximately nine miles. The route follows: Start at the branch headquarters on View Street, proceed along Douglas Street to Rogers Avenue, then to Quadra Street, along Quadra to View and then back to starting point.

The junior event has a route which will cover approximately five miles from headquarters on View Street, along Douglas to Cloverdale Avenue, thence to Quadra, then back to View Street and back to starting point.

TO DEFEND HONORS

Fred Loeffler, Clarence Sluggert and Rudy Loeffler, members of the "Y" squad, who finished first, second and third, respectively, in the senior race last year, have stated their intentions of defending their last year's laurels. Clarence Durbin, Y.M.C.A., and Eddie Styen, Keating flash, will also compete for honors in this event. It was announced.

Fred Loeffler won the senior race last year in 48 minutes 34.3 seconds. E. Geddes, of the Sooke Athletic Association, who ran away with the honors in the junior event last year, when he did the five miles in 30 minutes 47 seconds, and Jim Robinson, Y.M.C.A., have entered for that event this year.

Best runner, Y.M.C.A., who took honors in the juvenile race by running the two-mile distance in 13 minutes 4 seconds, is expected to defend his title.

SCHOOL ENTRIES

The strongest representation from schools will no doubt be in the juvenile and junior events, with a number of high school and college runners, prospective participants in the senior race.

The "Y" boys are in training for the senior and junior events already, and are again favored to take the majority of honors in these classes.

Much interest in previous years has been created in this distance test which has never failed to draw a large crowd of onlookers.

Those persons wishing to participate in either of three events are asked to get in touch with the secretary of the Britannia branch of the Canadian Legion, 715 View Street.

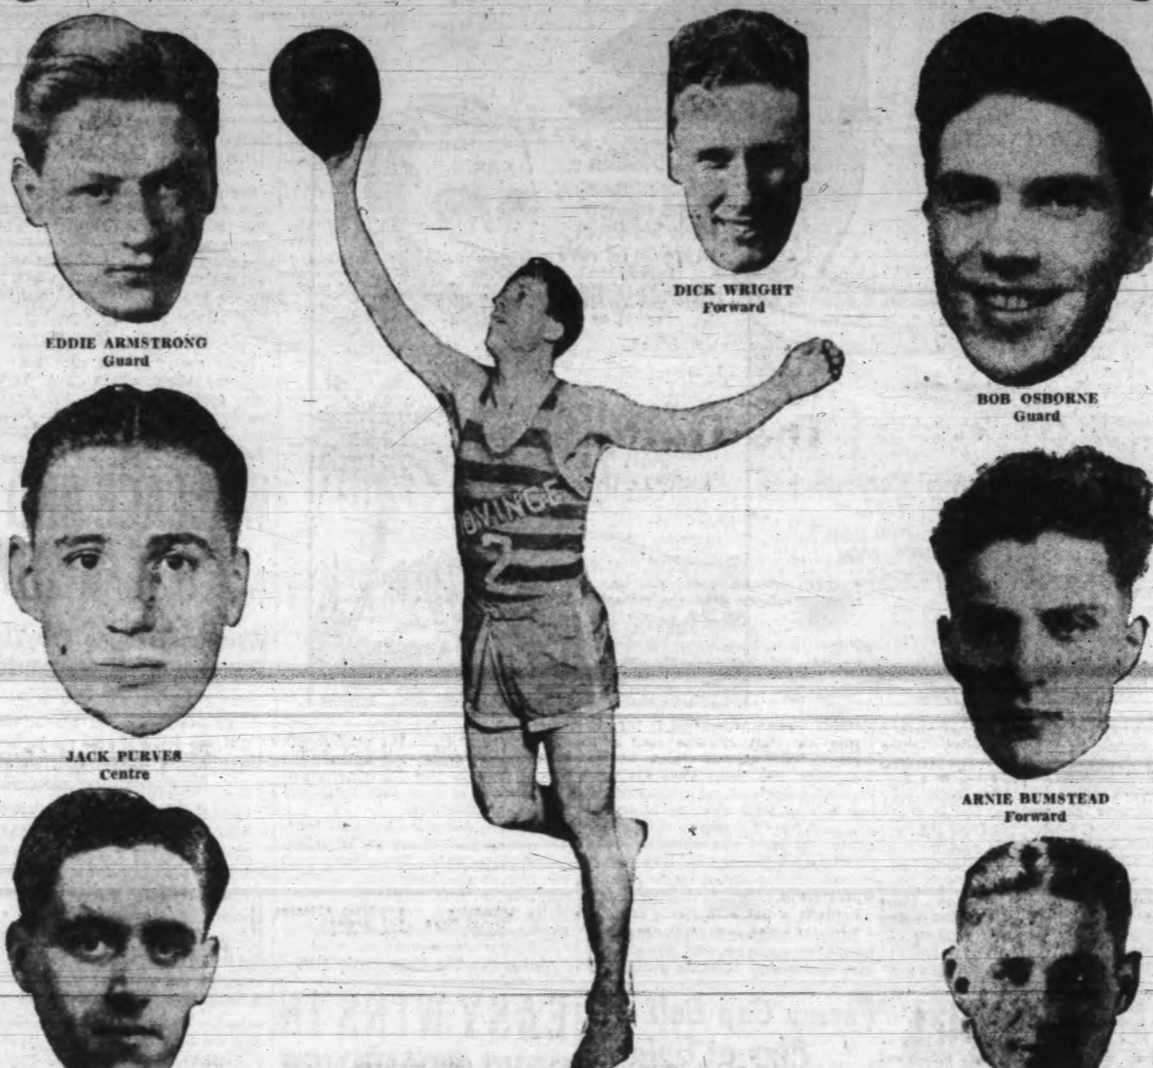

Garrison Club To Stage Tournament

On Wednesday evening, March 18, the Victoria Garrison Badminton Club, will stage an American mixed open table tennis tournament. Playing sessions for tomorrow will be the same as usual as the Work Point Barracks Badminton Club will stage a tournament.

No Table Tennis Matches Tonight

There will be no league table tennis matches this evening. The date was held open on account of the possibility of holding a Vancouver Island open table tennis tournament, but this was called off due to the British Columbia championships, which opened in Vancouver today.

WILL OPPOSE DOMINOES IN B.C. HOOP FINAL

Here are the basketball players who will represent the Vancouver Province in the British Columbia senior men's basketball championship series against the local Dominos. The first two games will be played at the High School gym of Friday and Saturday evenings. The winner will be determined on a three-out-of-five game basis. The last three games, or as many as are necessary to determine the championship, will be played on the mainland. The Province have a smart outfit and should give the Dominos plenty of opposition in their title defence. The Province defeated the New Westminster Adanacs in a play-off for the mainland championship.

WILL SEEK COAST TITLE

Kingham-Gillespie Basketballers Travel to Vancouver on Saturday

Members of the Kingham-Gillespie basketball squad, Victoria and Island intermediate A champions, will journey to Vancouver Saturday afternoon, where they are billed to oppose the Mount Pleasant hoopers in the evening in a sudden death fixture for B.C. Coast laurels.

Players to make the trip will include: Bill Dale, centre and captain; Harold Turner, forward; Maurice Johnston, forward; Art Barber, guard; Jack Phillips, guard; Alec Allan, guard; Burgess Berry, guard; Robert McConnell, forward; Jimmy Anderson, forward. Manager George Gordon and Coach Dr. Dim Johnson will accompany the team.

The Coal Men, after having completed a hard fight for the island championship, are in excellent condition for the encounter, and George Gordon, manager, announced today that the lads are determined to emerge victors over their more experienced mainland opponents.

Fights Are Held At Port Alberni

Port Alberni, March 10.—"Dud" Miller, promising young featherweight of this city, won a six-round decision over Julius Troll of Vancouver, in the main event of the Elk's boxing card here on Saturday night. Miller weighed 119½ and Troll 126. In the semi-final Wing Hay, popular local Chinese boy, was given the nod over Lionel Williams, Chemainus, while in the opener Harry Miller fought with Bob Keist and Sonny Foster. Nansimo, got a technical knockout over "Pug" Biggs in the third. There was a large crowd in attendance.

Amateur Hockey Title Hunt Opens

Teams Throughout Canada Begin Annual Battle For Allan and Memorial Cups; Kimberley Dynamiters Declared British Columbia Senior Champions

Spring hockey fever raged across Canada today among the amateurs. The temperature of the annual ice festival, especially in the Allan Cup arena, seemed higher than ever, higher even than last spring when a trip to the Olympic Games was the prize.

A crowd of 10,000 watched Verdon qualify for the Montreal Senior League finals yesterday evening at Montreal by defeating McGill University 5 to 4 with a thundering finish. A few supporters of Noranda Copper Kings traveled by airplane to watch the Kings humbled by Sudbury Falcons, 9 to 0, in the Northern Ontario senior final at Copper Cliff. Hamilton whooped it up when the Tigers, led again by Sullivan Appa and Howard McKie, conquered Toronto Dukes, 7 to 2, and won the Ontario Hockey Association's senior eastern crown.

Prince Albert staged a demonstration when Minots captured the Saskatchewan title by defeating Weyburn Beavers, 3 to 1.

Tigers will play either Kitchener-Waterloo greenhorns or Niagara Falls in the O.H.A. senior A finals. Brockville Magadamas may win the Ottawa City League title tonight at Ottawa, where they play Royal Canadian Air Force in the fifth game of the final playoff. Brockville has a lead of two games to one. Kimberley Dynamiters won the British Columbia title for the third straight year. Vancouver Cubs decided yesterday evening to default the final series after three members of the coast team were declared ineligible.

In the junior struggle for the Memorial Cup, Calgary Rangers moved ahead of the pack by defeating Trail Tigers, 8 to 6, in the year's first interprovincial test. The second of the two-game series takes place at Calgary tomorrow night.

Gains Beaten By Ben Foord

Leicester, England, March 10.—Ben Foord, South African heavyweight champion, yesterday evening outpointed Larry Gains, former Toronto negro boxer, in a twelve-round bout.

Foord appeared to have the better of the veteran Toronto campaigner for most of the fight. The South African recently won an unpopular decision from Tommy Loughran, United States heavyweight.

Anglers Look For Promising Season

Dr. Hugh Clark Elected President of Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association at Annual Meeting; Last Year One of Most Successful in History

Dr. Hugh Clark, well-known local angler, who has shown himself to be an ardent worker for the conservation of fish and promotion of better sport fishing, was yesterday evening elected president of the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association, at the annual meeting held in the Chamber of Commerce.

His Honor J. W. Fordham Johnson, Lieut.-Governor of British Columbia, was re-elected to the office of honorary president. Other officers elected were: Frank Moore, first vice-president; C. C. Cooper, second vice-president; Rev. C. Gilson, secretary-treasurer; George Patton, E. L. Tait and W. J. Halliday were elected to the directorate.

It was disclosed at the meeting by the past president, F. E. W. Smith, that last year was one of the most successful since the association's inception. It was pointed out that a 50 per cent increase was evident in the association's membership, there being an increase from 289 to 433. This includes thirty-five women members.

Mr. Smith thanked the members of the various committees and the executive for the wonderful co-operation given him during the last year, and also extended his appreciation to donors of competitive prizes.

It was evidenced in the president's annual report that one gold button, seventeen silver buttons and seventy-eight bronze buttons were presented during the year.

FINE WORK

To show their appreciation for the excellent work done by the retiring secretary-treasurer, Tyson Dixon, who has had a busy time owing to increased membership and other activities of the association, the members, by unanimous vote, recommended a present of $50 be given him. Mr. Tyson, in presenting the financial report, showed that the funds of the club were on a sound basis and showed a balance of $100.00 at the close of the year.

Bill Halliday explained that through the efforts of the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association, who went after and finally secured better spawning conditions for fish in Goldstream, revived coho fish at Greenwood is the fine prospect for future years.

The matter of urging the Dominion government to erect a buoy on a dangerous rock at the entrance to Brentwood Bay was left in the hands of E. L. Tait. The association applied to the government previously for this necessity and was turned down, owing to the fact that no commercial boats came near this point. Members, however, pointed out at the meeting that commercial boats did venture in the area quite frequently, and at the same time it was a constant danger to pleasure craft. They will make a renewed stand for this erection.

The question of the club undertaking the building of moors for fishing boats at McKenzie and Quarry Bays was laid on the table until further demand for them was received.

A majority vote passed a resolution that the members of the association in future be permitted to use while fishing one lure on a line, with as many hooks as one likes.

MORE MEETINGS

In order to create greater interest in the association's activities, it was decided that a general meeting be held each month from April to September. Prize winners during the month will be presented with the buttons, and at the same time new members will be welcomed by the president. The date and place of the meetings will be set by the executive. Motion pictures on fishing and other things of interest to anglers will be shown at these meetings.

It was decided that competition for the Poodle Dog Cup, trophy for the greatest number of button fish caught during the season, be only on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons, Sundays and holidays. This, it is thought, will put every one on a more even basis.

The Schwaner's Cup, awarded to the women catching the largest salmon during the season, was won by Mrs.

BASEBALL GOSSIP

Panama, Fla.—Frank Gabier of the New York Giants is having a tough time of it these days. He was suffering from a strained knee when an insect bit him under the eye while he slept the other night. Now he has a bad eye and a bad knee. The eye was swollen so badly it had to be lanced.

Lakeland, Fla.—Leon (Goose) Goslin was in camp today, planning to have a talk with Mickey Cochrane, boss of the Detroit Tigers, relative to a salary agreement. Hank Greenberg now is the only one missing.

Pasadena—Marshall Mauldin, who proved a bust when he tried out as a third baseman with the Chicago White Sox last year, is back as an outfielder and may stick. He has shown plenty of batting talent.

Orlando—Owner Clark Griffith of the Washington Senators, his players idle yesterday, popped off with the following: "It isn't the team with the stars that clicks. You've got to have luck. If our pitching is only fair we will be in the race. If it's good we may be out front. I like this ball club and Bucky Harris can get more out of a team than any manager I know."

Avon, — The Chicago Cubs approached the close of their stay at Catalina Island with intra-camp games scheduled for today and tomorrow. Thursday night the squad will start for Los Angeles to meet the White Sox in the first of a three-game series.

San Antonio—Whether Paul Waner got the salary he wanted is a secret between him and Bill Benavenger, but, anyway, sweet harmony prevails in the Pittsburgh Pirate camp. Guessers say both sides made concessions.

Havana.—The St. Louis Cardinals were due back in Bradenton today after breaking even in their four Cuban games. They worked like a real club yesterday as they downed Almendares.

Santa Monica, Calif.—There's still a threat in the betting ability of Duke Ruetter, Seattle's manager and ex-major league pitcher.

Ruetter took a turn at the plate in the Indians' exhibition game with the Chicago White Sox yesterday, and promptly slammed out a single off Johnny Whitehead, the Sox rookie star. It was almost good for two bases.

President William Klepper flew down for the game, and was not disappointed despite the fact the Sox victory. The Ruetter pupils looked good, aside from a bad third inning.

Fresno.—The San Francisco Seals shut out the Tokio Giants 9 to 0 for their second victory against the invaders in an exhibition baseball game yesterday. Harley Bosk, Seal first baseman, led the batting with three hits. The Giants made only four hits off Sam Gibson and two off Bob Cole.

Monterey.—In a wild, poorly played game the Missions defeated Oakland 18 to 10 yesterday. The Missions batted out twenty-one hits and the Oaks thirteen.

Modesto.—A group of New York Yankee recruits aided by two Oakland Coast League players lost an exhibition contest 5 to 4 yesterday to the Modesto Reds. 1935 California State League baseball champions. The losers scored all their runs in the last half of the ninth.

M. McKay, with a twenty-seven and one-half-pound salmon.

Past President F. E. W. Smith won the Poodle Dog Challenge Cup for landing the most button fish by a member. His catches were ten salmon over twenty pounds. Mr. Smith also took the honors the year previously with five button fish.

The Alecock perpetual trophy, emblematic of the competition champion for 1935, was won by George Goy with a sixteen-pound salmon. Eric Holbrook, fourteen, took possession of the Peck Cup, which is competed for by junior members under eighteen years of age. His catch was a twenty-one and one-half pound fish.

Having caught a thirty-nine-pounder, George Laird won the International Cup. J. A. Ledson captured the George Robinson Wednesday Perpetual Cup with a twenty-one-pound salmon.

President Clark announced before the close of the meeting that the Chinook Club, which is a club within the association, will in future give a certificate to button winners. Mr. Warren moved that a vote of thanks be extended to the retiring executive.

Schriner Is Still Top Hockey Scorer

Star of New York Americans Heads National Hockey League By Four Points Despite Scoreless Week; Aurie, Lewis and Barry, Detroit Aces, Make Gains

Montreal, March 10.—While the sniping pair of New York Americans were closely checked by opposing defences for three games, sharpshooters of Detroit Red Wings, Chicago Black Hawks, Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Maroons advanced through last week to threaten a race for National Hockey League honors.

Outstanding performance of the week, as shown in the statistics issued yesterday evening, was the consistent point-making of Detroit's ace line. Reunited after injuries had kept Larry Aurie, right winger, out for about two weeks, and Herb Lewis, left winger, for a shorter time, the pair with Marty Barry, centre, scored seventeen points, although Detroit lost two of the three games played. Barry and Aurie each scored three goals, three assists, while Lewis netted one and aided in four.

The statistics showed Dave Schriner, Americans' left winger and top point scorer of the whole league, was held pointless, and his centre mate, Art Chapman, obtained but one goal.

Schriner's margin was cut to four points by Paul Thompson, Chicago left winger, who netted a goal and obtained an assist for seventeen goals, twenty assists, thirty-seven points, to take second place in the league and hold first in the United States section. Schriner's figures remained at 18-23-41.

Winnipeg's "Doc" Romnes, Chicago centre, and Mush March, his right winger, gained two and three points, respectively, to hold second and third places in the United States section.

In the Canadian section, Chapman still held second with 10-26-36, but Hooley Smith, Maroons, was right at his heels with 18-17-35.

The race for honors in goal scoring was tied up tight with five players all with eighteen goals. They were Barry and Dillon in the United States section; Schriner, Smith and Thoms in the Canadian.

In minutes Red Horner, Toronto, had 145 minutes by far the greatest total. Other high marks included Smith, Montreal, 70; Conacher, Toronto, 70; Shields, Montreal, 77; Levinsky, Chicago, 69; Goodfellow, Detroit, 65; and Siebert, Boston, 62.

CALUMET GETS INTO MOVIES

Canadian Press
Haney, B.C., March 10.—The Calumet, famous pipe of peace of the Maple Ridge municipal council, will soon appear in the movies. It was filmed by a screen news company here last Saturday while being smoked by the council members at a meeting.

Reve Solomon Mussallim told the history of the pipe and how it was purchased in Victoria by Rea S. Loughhead.

He also told of the misfortune that seems to result from refusal to smoke the Calumet. It was not smoked last year, and the municipality suffered floods and other troubles, ending with the illness of Reve William Hope and his retirement during the municipal election.

EMPLOYMENT INCREASES

Wanderers Whites to Play Vancouver Fifteen in Rugby Final Preliminary

Inter-city flavor will be added to Victoria's rugby programme on Saturday with the Wanderers.

Wanderers, who are the champions of the British Columbia League, will play the local intermediate champions and the main-land visitors in a scheduled match at 2:15 o'clock on the lower pitch at Macdonald Park, while the senior city championship will be decided on the upper ground an hour later.

Plans were laid at yesterday evening's meeting of the rugby union for the Kwanich Cup match, between Victoria High School and Victoria College at Fernwood Park tomorrow.

Lieutenant-Commander Wurtz was selected as referee and the kick-off was set for 3:30 o'clock.

PLAN DELAYED
"Formation of a coaches' union" was left in abeyance until Saturday when Jack Underhill, Vancouver, chairman of the British Columbia referees board, will pay the city a visit. J. B. Acland, sponsor of the scheme, will be spokesman for Victoria on the issue at a special meeting to which U. derhill will go.

Original dates for the appearance of the Stanford rugby team here and in Vancouver were re-affirmed at the meeting by H. J. Ketchen. Mr. Ketchen said the southern team would play here on April 1 after two games in Vancouver on March 25 and 28.

TO HOLD DANCE
A dance will be held here to entertain the visitors and proceeds from the function, scheduled for the Empress Hotel, will be turned over to St. Joseph's Hospital for its care of injured players.

The Canadian Scottish intermediates were given permission to play an exhibition game against University School at Mount Tolmie on Saturday.

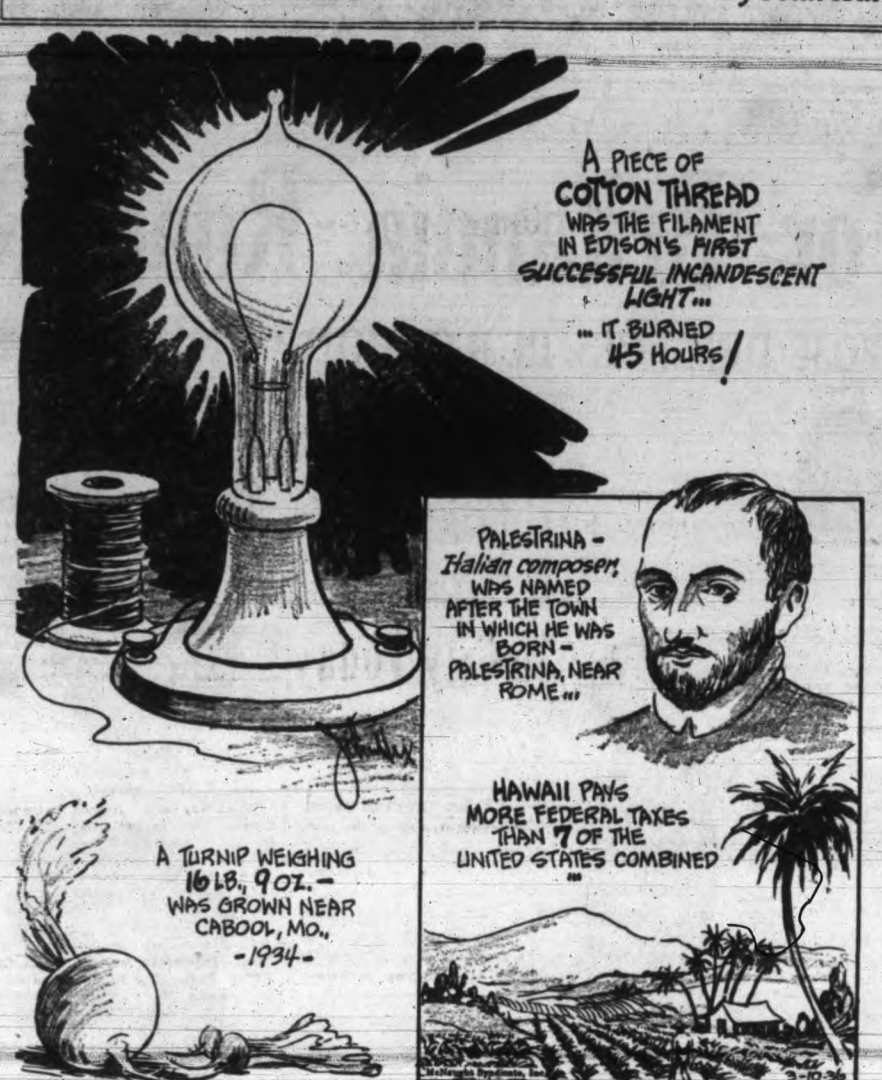

The Union expressed deep regret over the death of P. F. Curtis, an ardent supporter of rugby here and former president of the union. A resolution of condolence was passed to the family.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS

—By John Hix

The modern electric light that we use today has a glowing filament of tungsten—a metal that retains its solidity at temperatures up to 3200 degrees Centigrade. Most bulbs are filled with nitrogen gas. Not so long ago, however, electric light had carbon filaments, and even quite recently the practice of exhausting virtually all of the air from the bulbs was followed.

Strange as it seems, the first successful electric light had a piece of cotton thread for a filament. Edison perfected the light by carbonizing a piece of thread and using it instead of platinum filament that had been used in experimental lights before that time. For years after his first successful light—it burned the amazing time of forty-five hours—carbon was used for all incandescent electric lights. At least one widely-followed method used Edison's old idea of carbonizing cotton thread in the making of filaments.

Internal revenue tax records of the United States show that Hawaii paid into the federal treasury during the fiscal year 1933-34, a total of $5,116,470, of which $3,287,591 was income tax collection. Total revenue from the islands paid to the U.S. government up to the end of June, 1934, amounted in all to $129,987,157.

The yearly collection from the territory exceeds that of any one of sixteen United States states. The income taxes for 1933-34 exceeded those of seven U.S. states put together—Arizona, Idaho, Mississippi, New Mexico, North Dakota, South Dakota and Wyoming.

RANGERS WILL MEET MAROONS

New York Club Needs Win Tonight to Remain in N.H.L. Play-off Race

Paying no attention to Conny Smythe, New York Rangers will try to lift themselves back into National Hockey League playoff contention tonight at Montreal.

where they face Maroons. Rangers, however, will work under a handicap. Smythe has declared they are the least deserving of any club of a playoff berth.

As he prepared to invade New York, where the Leafs play Americans tonight, the Toronto hoos unloaded a barrage against the financial gentry behind the New York bluenoses.

"They have made the post-season playoffs every year since they entered the league, but this has been due to the veterans they started with and who are still with the club, and the master-minding of Lester Patrick."

"They are owned by the biggest and wealthiest corporation in the league, but they are also the cheapest. We have spent $100,000 to strengthen our hockey team for ever-dollar they have spent. Boston has spent money freely and even their New York rivals, the Americans, have spent more money this season than Rangers."

The third game on tonight's programme brings together Boston Bruins and Detroit Red Wings at Boston. Boston twice during the week-end. Red Wings need a victory to assure their strong hold on first place in the American group—and Bruins need a win to keep ahead of Rangers in third place.

After replacing the spar buoy at Burnaby Shoal which had broken away from its moorings, the steamer Leebro, under charter to the Marine and Fisheries Department, returned to port last night.

Twenty-five Years Ago To-day

(From The Times Files)

Mayor Morley announced this morning that the $2 road tax will be accepted from the holders of agreements of sale, either male or female, who are entitled to pay the tax, but the city will not accept any responsibility as to the legality of the course. The acceptance of the $2 tax by the city will entitle the persons paying the same to enrollment upon the voters' lists for the next election.

The Victoria Board of Trade yesterday went on record as being unanimously in favor of the establishment of an observatory for meteorological and other research work in the city.

For a whole week fire raged in the bunkers of the Canadian-Australian liner Moana, Capt. Morriarty, which arrived at the outer dock yesterday afternoon from the Antipodes and it was not until the holds in which the trouble had been discovered had been practically flooded that it was subdued.

WALLACE AND ROSS READY

Wind-up Training For Ten-round Bout at Vancouver Tomorrow Night

Vancouver, March 10.—The training grind is over for Barney Ross, world welterweight champion, and Gordon Wallace, the earnest Vancouver youngster who hopes to fight his way to the top of the pugilistic pile in ten rounds against the flashing-eyed Hebrew here tomorrow night.

One thing stands out as the fighters rested today, awaiting the clang of the arena gong. Wallace is in the best condition of his ring career. He has everything to win and he is up against the type of fighter he likes to meet.

In three rounds with Al Ford, hard-shelled negro scrapper, Ross did all the leading and plenty of glove-throwing yesterday. He hit Ford with everything, tossing punches from all angles, fighting just the kind of fight Wallace wants him to put up tomorrow.

"Barney does all his training that way," his managers, Sam Plan and Art Winch, said. "He takes every fight as seriously as if it were a championship go. Just think what would have happened to him if he hadn't been in the pink when Garcia showed him that time. It would have been curtains, that's all. But he came back to win the decision and that shows you how this boy can take it."

After his workout yesterday he weighed 141½ pounds, while Wallace was close to 147.

Jack Allen, Wallace's manager, believes his fighter will be able to make the 147-pound minimum easily enough with today and tomorrow to rest up.

SEES NO RISK OF RHINE WAR

Professor F. H. Soward Tells Audience Germany Aims to Move in East

"Barring an incident at the border—and the worst three days are now past—there is little likelihood of an armed clash arising out of the German remilitarization of the Rhineland," Professor F. H. Soward told an audience of 200 which he addressed on "The Outlook in International Affairs," at Girls' Central School last night in the course of the University Extension Society's lecture series.

Germany, said Professor Soward, was reversing its policy of 1914. At that time it had held the east firmly in order to move in the west. Now it was strengthening its western border in preparation for a possible move in the east, in accordance with Hitler's announced intention of eastern expansion, that is to say, in the direction of Russia.

If the Rhineland militarization were successfully maintained, Professor Soward believed that the Reich would move in one of three directions: The occupation of Memel in weak Lithuania; the institution by plebiscite of an inviolable control over Austria, or an attempt to recover lost colonies, prized not for their commercial value but for prestige.

Professor Soward opened his lengthy address with a review of world economic conditions, pointing out that there had been individual national recoveries generally—except in the three gold bloc nations, France, Switzerland and Holland—but no world co-operative plan.

The world's economic position had been improved by the removal of three factors which had led to unrest: reparations, which had passed from the scene—completely in 1933, war debts, which had ceased to be a factor since 1924, and the shortage of gold, met by an increase in the price of the yellow metal and the loosening of hoards.

With exceptions, world industrial production was higher, and employment had also risen.

The 1921 peace treaties, in the crisis itself, but in the lack of co-operation of nations in emerging from the crisis.

INCREASE OF FEAR
However, the economic factors were in part nullified by the factor of fear, which had increased notably during the last two years.

This fear had its source primarily in the policies of three nations, Germany, Italy and Japan. These were nations lacking in natural resources, disarmed by peace treaties, needing expansion, and controlled by open or fairly obvious dictatorships.

The peace of the world was being disturbed by about 10 per cent of its whole population, President Roosevelt had said.

GERMANY'S POLICY
The greatest disturbance, said Professor Soward, came

NOTES OF THE LEGISLATURE

TOMORROW
Hon. John Hart, Minister of Finance, will make his budget speech to the House.

YESTERDAY
Premier Pattullo spoke fifty minutes, closing the debate on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne.

The Premier was under much difficulty making his address to the House, having not fully recovered from the sore throat and cold which he contracted before the session started.

He received a thunderous deak-thumping when rising to speak and the public galleries were crowded.

Bills to defer payment of the taxes for interest and sinking funds due to 1935 on provincial debt, and to amend the Public Works Act, were introduced by Hon. A. Wells Gray, Minister of Lands. This follows the practice of postponing the payments adopted some years ago.

The railway committee decided this morning to discuss with departmental officials the possibility of linking Squamish and North Vancouver by highway to give a connection between the terminus of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway and Vancouver. Major D. M. MacKay, Liberal, Cariboo, presided over the meeting.

The fisheries committee, meeting under S. S. McKen, Liberal, Point Grey, urged the necessity of clearing out salmon spawning streams so the fish could get up to the headwaters to spawn, and suggested the province make representations to Ottawa to have the necessary legislation passed. It was also proposed that regulations which prevent white settlers from taking salmon from the streams for their winter supplies should be eased.

The House will go into night sessions next week.

The Legislative Press Gallery held its annual meeting yesterday and elected H. Sandham Graves president and C. F. Moriarty secretary-treasurer. James Dyer of the Vancouver Sun and Albert H. Williamson of the Vancouver News-Herald were initiated as new members, and B. A. McKelvie of the Victoria Colonist, a former member, welcomed back.

DUNCAN

Duncan, March 10.—At the regular meeting of the Duncan City Council on Friday evening, a petition was received, signed by thirty-two active business firms, requesting the council to again approach the Indian Department asking that no further leases of Indian Reservation land be granted, without the council's agreement.

The council agreed to make the representations.

The erection of the "welcome" sign for the city, was left in the hands of the streets committee, with power to act.

On recommendation of the fire wardens committee the council decided to contribute $50 towards the expenses of entertaining visiting delegates to the Vancouver Island and Lower Mainland Fire Chiefs' Convention which will be held in Duncan on April 11.

The newly-formed band will be notified that the council has no power to make it a grant.

The salary of the street foreman was raised from $140 to $150 per month.

The monthly meeting of the committee of the Cowichan Golf Club was held in the Club House, Duncan, on Friday evening, the president, Colonel A. F. M. Slater, in the chair. Owing to the weather conditions last month, the February medal competition did not take place. It will be played on Sunday, March 15, and the March medal competition will take place on Sunday, March 22. Owing to the heavy frost still in the ground, the committee has ordered the links closed until Thursday, March 12.

New members elected were Miss A. M. Richards, T. W. G. Ashton and Norman Hedley (re-elected).

Dates have been arranged for home and home matches with the Royal Colwood, Macaulay, Uplands, Gorge Vale and Nanaimo Golf Clubs.

Charity organizations and philanthropic societies of various kinds received gifts totaling $400,000.00 in 1934.

ODDITIES IN NEWS OF VICTORIA TODAY

Snakes Nest In Bananas—Albino Sparrow Seen—Your City Is The Payoff, Says Lady Visitor—Synthetic Cobwebs—Dog Wants to Go to Jail—Vimy or Bust.

A black mongrel dog who spent a fretful night in care of the city police while his master slept in the lock-up, presented a problem to police officers at headquarters this morning when his master was sentenced to five days' imprisonment. The dog, a faithful animal who has followed his master while at sea for several years, bayed and whined all night after his master had been taken inside on a charge of being intoxicated.

This morning it was a pitiful scene, which touched the hearts of hard-hearted sergeants, as the dog strained at a rope to try and get away to follow his master into court.

After the man had been sentenced, police agreed to take the dog to the pound until his master is released.

LADY IS FRANK
An outspoken young lady from Winnipeg packed her bags and headed for home today expressing the opinion that "Victoria is a good place to come from."

Miss M. Mendell, small and dark, leaned against the desk of the Dominion Hotel this morning and informed a reporter of The Times, "I don't like Winnipeg much, but it's better than this place."

"After Los Angeles, San Francisco and Seattle, this is the payoff," she added.

"The scenery is fine, and the people are not so bad, but I just don't like the place. There's nothing to do here."

"When I celebrate my seventy-fifth wedding anniversary maybe I'll come back to Victoria."

Miss Mendell arrived here from a visit to California on Sunday. This afternoon she was bound for Vancouver on her way home to Winnipeg.

COBWEBS FOR THE MOVIES
The spiders of Victoria will need a technocratic system now. Mass production has entered into their most private field, and there are rumors that the little creatures are planning to call a strike all over the city in protest.

Synthetic cobwebs of high grade and excellent wearing quality are now being made to order here. The process is being frequently demonstrated in the Willows studio of Central Films Limited.

There is nothing complicated about the system.

The only materials required are two ordinary wooden boards and a pot of glue.

The glue is spread on one of the boards, and the two planks are then pulled gently apart. The glue comes off in long mats, like gum pulled from a small boy's mouth.

The streamers are artistically draped across the corners of walls and windows on the set.

So it is now—"Come into my parlor, let the prop man to the fly."

FOR RENT, UNFURNISHED
Two nests which he says belong to snakes were found in the early hours of this morning by Walter Johnson, worker on wholesale row.

The nests appear to be made of coarse grass and dried brush. In one of them are bits of skin which look as though they have been shed by a snake.

There are some feathers in the nests, but Mr. Johnson still holds to his contention that they belong to snakes.

"Snakes eat birds, you know," he said.

Mr. Johnson discovered the nests while working up a bunch of bananas at 1 o'clock this morning.

Hollywood, Cal., March 10.—Robert Edmond Jones, film director, predicted today that within twenty years a combination of television and three-dimensional photography would revolutionize not only entertainment, but commercial operations and scientific study as well.

Looking ahead to 1956 he said he saw—

Movie stars performing right in the living-rooms of millions of homes.

—Department stores featuring the equivalent of kinetoscope "peep" shows in lieu of mannequins, to exhibit new fashions shown thousands of miles away.

GEORGE NEXT!
Ex-sergeant Major George Thompson, B.C. Electric motorman, was a little downcast but still optimistic today. He had a ticket in the Vimy Pilgrimage Crusade.

News was out that a B.C. Electric motorman and a man named Thompson had won the free prize of a trip to the battlefield. The combination sounded like George Thompson.

The results, however, showed Arthur Plowman, B.C. Electric motorman, was one winner. Al Thompson, Scott and Peden's salesman, was another.

Taking another look at his ticket George found it was for another drawing and regarded the signs as favorable.

START REPAIRS TO SOOKE PIPE
Repair work on the Sooke pipeline, damaged during recent severe weather, was under way today, G. M. Irwin, city engineer and water commissioner, stated.

Men under engineering department orders are hauling material to the location in which the pipe-line is damaged and are making preparations for repairing the harm caused by extreme cold and the floods late last month.

Closer to home the department is working on the eastern section of Central Park, where the playing field has been ploughed up. The tract will be regraded and drains will be installed before turf is planted.

Albino Sparrow Seen In Garden

What is believed to be an albino sparrow was seen in a Victoria garden a short time ago.

Bill Lemm, pigeon enthusiast at 433 Cook Street, was feeding his birds one day when a flock of sparrows came down to join in the meal. Among them was an absolutely white bird.

The albino was the same size as the other sparrows and seemed to get along well with them.

I. W. C. Solloway In City Today

Broker Who Calls Himself "The Lawyer's Dream" Has Nothing to Say

Retiring into his shell after telling newspapermen in the east that he was "the lawyer's dream," I. W. C. Solloway, former head of the Solloway-Mills Brokerage Company, now in receivership, had nothing to say as he passed through Victoria today on his way from Montreal to California.

When interviewed at the Empress Hotel this morning, Mr. Solloway confined himself to remarks about his liking for Victoria, and such general matters as the weather in the east and his pleasant journey across Canada.

The suggestion that his name had been in the news recently he met with a smile and silence. He would say nothing of his recent fight with the Dominion Government.

In an interview in Ottawa Mr. Solloway claimed that he had spent the sum of $2,000,000 since 1930 in lawyers' and court fees.

Mr. Solloway arrived in Victoria this morning from Vancouver, and was proceeding to Seattle en route to California this afternoon.

His reason for going to California he gave vaguely as "the weather back there."

Lawrence Was Great Showman

J. H. Norton of Victoria Tells Kiwanis Club Something About Famous Man

Members of the Kiwanis Club at their luncheon in the Empress Hotel today heard an account of the Arabian war and a brief description of Col. Lawrence by J. H. Norton.

Lawrence, Mr. Norton said, was a master of tact and diplomacy, and used both to get the Arabs to unite in the common effort of overthrowing the Turks.

The Arab army which Lawrence built up was largely composed of ex-officers and soldiers of the Turkish army, and quite naturally there was a certain amount of treason.

Lawrence blew up many trains and bridges, and his name rapidly became famous, Mr. Norton said. The Arabs worshipped him. Instead of being an imposing-looking man, he was rather insignificant in appearance.

The speaker said he was a great showman and showed his ability in this accounted largely for his success. He had a great eye for effect.

Loot, Mr. Norton said, was the life-blood and breath of the Arab. Sometimes, when looting a train, they became so completely convulsed and hysterical they fought even with themselves. The only thing that Lawrence ever took was the bell from a looted train. He gave one of the bells to Mr. Norton, who presented it to a little church in Essex, England.

At the beginning of the war the Turks had "pretty well a stranglehold on Arabia, Palestine and Syria, and were casting envious eyes on Egypt," Mr. Norton said.

Mr. Norton was introduced by Fred M. McGregor, and was thanked for his talk by H. E. Douglas.

F. R. WRIGHT PASSES AWAY

Retired Engineer Officer and Church Worker Succumbs in Hospital

Capt. Frederick R. Wright of 1640 Gladstone Avenue passed away this morning at the Jubilee Hospital, where he had been a patient since Sunday. He had been a resident of Victoria for about thirty years, and was a member of the Victoria Rifle Association and as treasurer of the British Columbia Rifle Association for many years.

Capt. Wright was an Englishman by birth and was with the Royal Engineers in the Imperial Army for many years, serving in the South African War. After coming to Victoria he transferred to the Royal Canadian Engineers and was works officer with that force until his retirement in 1924 with the rank of captain.

A staunch member of the Oak Bay United Church, Capt. Wright was also a member of the General Council of the United Church in Canada and was chairman of various committees of the Victoria Presbytery.

He is survived by his widow, who is a member of the Equilmalt Chapter, I.O.D.E.; two sons, Frederick R. Wright Jr. and Stanley V. Wright, and one daughter, Mrs. Godfrey Hirst, all in Victoria, as well as two grandchildren.

PREPAIDS UP ABOUT $30,000
Good Gain Maintained in Advance Payment of City Taxes to Date

Tax prepayments in the city at the end of last week stood nearly $30,000 above the total collected during the same period last year, it was reported by officials of the city controller-treasurer's department today.

The actual net prepayment up to and including Saturday amounted to $12,249.81 against $382,498.44 at March 7, 1935.

Of the sum turned in through that channel to date the major part was taken in January when $377,868.69 made its way to the city coffers through that medium.

Through the system of allowing interest on the advance of levies people who have prepaid so far this year have earned for themselves $14,517.68. Last year at the same date the interest allowance was $13,248.02.

With her parents when nine years old, she moved to Cloverdale with her husband in 1916.

Besides her husband three sons and three daughters survive. One of the sons, Norman, resides at Alberni, B.C.

INTEREST IN ALASKA ROUTE

"People down south are getting more and more Alaska-minded," George Skinner, surveyor of services for the Canadian National Railways, said at the Empress Hotel this morning.

Mr. Skinner, who is making a routine survey across Canada, said there was a definite improvement in the railway's business in all directions, most noticeable in the number of inquiries in connection with the Alaska steamship service.

Mr. Skinner arrived in Victoria yesterday, and will remain here for two or three days. He was at one time owner of the St. Charles Hotel in Winnipeg.

Mrs. Scott was born in Saint John, N.B., and met Mr. Scott when both were employed on The St. John's Gazette. They were married thirty-two years ago. Besides her husband, Mrs. Scott is survived by one son, John, on the staff of the Canadian Press, Toronto.

SEASON FRUIT TARIFFS STUDIED

Ottawa, March 10.—The government is considering the question of seasonal tariffs on fruits and vegetables. Finance Minister Dunning told Liguori Lacombe, Liberal, Laval, Two Mountains, Que., who in the Commons yesterday evening favored adoption of his resolution favoring such imports, particularly in April.

MANY CARS OF PRODUCE HERE

Over 125 tons of fruits and vegetables were unloaded on wholesale row today.

With little in the way of produce coming in from farming districts on the island, shipments from outside points have been heavy of late. Despite this, however, today's eight and one-half carloads was one of the largest 'single day's work for wholesalers on record.

The shipments include:

- One carload of oranges from California.
- One carload of lemons and grapefruit from California.
- One carload of onions from Okanagan.
- A mixed carload of onions and apples from the Okanagan.
- One and one-half carloads of bananas.
- Two carloads of vegetables from California.
- The bananas had to be unloaded at 1 o'clock this morning. The vegetables shipment includes cabbages, lettuce, green peas, spinach, carrots and parsley.

Prices for rhubarb are advancing. The market was up one-half cent this morning and wholesalers are looking for further moves.

California cabbages eased off one-half cent today. The cabbages are now selling for 4 1/2 cents to 5 cents each.

A shortage of Mexican tomatoes exists on the market today, but wholesalers are expecting new supplies tomorrow.

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

DEAR MISS DIX - I have been going with a young man whom I like very much. He is a fine fellow in most respects, but he is what is commonly known as a sponge. He is supposed to be in love with me, but he never spends any money on me, but he never even gives me a box of candy or a package of cigarettes. Never thinks of taking me to a party or show unless some of my friends suggest it first, and when we do he smokes the other boys' cigarettes and leaves them to pay the bill.

His idea of entertaining me is to take me up to his home for bridge and dinner, or else for me to make up a game at his house. This boy has so many other fine points that try to overlook this fault, but my friends talk about it and are beginning to leave me out of things, and I know the reason why. Is there any way in which I can point this out to him without hurting him? I want to help him and I know he doesn't realize just what a X.B.

habit he has fallen into.

Answer - Stinginess isn't a habit. It isn't an acquired characteristic. It is something that is born in an individual, and you could change the color of his hair or eyes just as easily as you could turn him into a spender. Old nurses look at a baby's hand and say: "He has a tight fist and will hang on to every dollar he ever gets." Or, "He has an open hand and money will slip through his fingers." This, of course, is a superstition, but it is true that from infancy up children show what their attitude through life is going to be toward money. Some children are generous and want to divide what they have with others. Other children are stingy and selfish and not only keep all that they have for themselves but graft on their playmates.

So, don't deceive yourself into thinking that anything that you can say to your fiance will open up his pocketbook. He simply can't do it. The agony of parting with a nickel is greater than he can bear. Don't imagine for a moment that he doesn't fully understand the contempt in which he is held by every one with whom he associates. No man is more despised than the one who grafts his cigarettes off others and who always manages to dodge the check at dinner.

I would certainly advise you to think a long time before you marry a stingy man. No other fault that a husband can have can make a marriage more miserable for a wife, because it is something with which she has to contend every minute of every day. It is worse even than drunkenness or philandering in a husband, because a drunkard cannot always be drunk. He must have intervals of sobriety in which he is pleasant to live with. And the philanderer cannot be eternally having affairs. There must be interludes in which he brings home flowers and jewel peace offerings to his wife. But the tightwad never releases his hold on his pocketbook until death loosens his grip.

Always his wife has to be humiliated by panhandling him as if she were a beggar for every cent she needs. Always she has to flatter and cajole and use the arts of a courtesan upon him to get a new dress or hat. Always he rows over the bills, no matter how thrifty she is. Always he begrudges her and the children every pleasure and every comfort. Always he mortifies her by deadbeating his way when they go out with others.

I know a woman married to a rich man who once told me that in the forty years of her married life she had never had as much as $10 that she could spend as she pleased. I know other women, married to miserly husbands, in whose $80 handbags there is never so much as a quarter. I know a woman who lives in a palace whose husband has never permitted her to ask a single member of her family to visit her because of the expense; it would entail to feed them, but he sends her and the children summer after summer to stay with them.

These men are all moral, upright men, with many good qualities, but they are just stingy, and that ruins everything else. Their love for their families doesn't go as far as their pockets. Unless you want to be one of these unhappy wives, don't marry your sponging boy friend.

DEAR MISS DIX - Will you please tell us what is meant by going fifty-fifty in marriage?

Answer - It simply means making a partnership of marriage in which the husband and wife share equally in the pleasures and profits and the work and worry. It means that if the husband provides the money to support the house that the wife shall do her part by making him a comfortable home and being a thrifty housekeeper. But it also means that if the wife continues on with her job after marriage and contributes to the household expenses that the husband shall help her with the housework.

It means that the husband shall do his part toward making a happy home, instead of expecting the wife to do all of the smiling and glad-handing, and it means that the wife shall show him just as much affection and appreciation as she expects him to show her. It means that the husband will be as domestic as she expects his wife to be, and that he won't think that he has a right to go downtown evenings, and that she won't think she has a right to spend her time at bridge parties and feed her husband on delicatessen menus.

It means that they will work shoulder to shoulder; that they will play together; that they will share their money, their joys and their sorrows together. That is what a fifty-fifty marriage is.

Uncle Wiggily and the Strange Bear

By HOWARD R. GARIS

When Uncle Wiggily started to take the three new little rabbits, Jumpy, Jump and Jumpy, out to the woods for an adventure, to stop them from crying, Baby Bunty, the orphan rabbit, called to ask: "Where are you going, Uncle Wiggily?" That was all the baby she was allowed to say.

"I'm taking them on an adventure trip," said Mr. Longears.

"Oh, may I come, Uncle Wiggily?" asked Baby Bunty.

"I suppose so," he answered. Really he couldn't refuse Baby Bunty anything, or any of the other children anything, for that matter.

"Oh, such a rabbit man!" exclaimed Nurse Jane Fussy Wussy as she saw Uncle Wiggily waiting for Baby Bunty. "You can't do a thing with him!"

But Uncle Wiggily only laughed and winked his pink nose while Baby Bunty was hopping in to join him and the three other little rabbits. And then Bunty said: "What kind of an adventure is it, Uncle Wiggily?"

"It's an adventure with a candy tree," said Jumpy.

"Is it really, Uncle Wiggily?" asked Bunty.

"Yes, it is," said Uncle Wiggily. "I have a surprise for our three new little rabbits. It's a surprise I saw in the woods on my way home. And it really is a candy tree."

"May we have some of the candy?" asked Jumpy.

"Yes," said Uncle Wiggily, smiling. "Two pieces, please?" asked Jumpy.

"Yes," said Uncle Wiggily, smiling again. "Oh, joy!" sang Jumpy, Jumpy and Jumpy all together.

Baby Bunty, the orphan rabbit, who was older than the three new little rabbits, looked at them and then she looked at Uncle Wiggily and then she said: "Just two words of baby talk."

"Yes, Bunty," answered Mr. Longears. "It's really a candy tree. I am going to show Jumpy, Jumpy and Jumpy for their adventure."

"Pooh! Then I know what it's a candy tree!" said Bunty.

"What is it?" asked Uncle Wiggily, twinkling his pink nose.

"It's a maple tree in the woods," said Bunty. "And one of the branches is broken. The sweet maple sap has dripped out and it has frozen into icicles. Maple sap is sweet and when it freezes into hard icicles they are sweet too, like sticks of candy. Pooh, I don't call that an adventure."

MORE TO IT

"It wouldn't be if that's all there was to it," said Uncle Wiggily as he hopped along with the rabbits, Jumpy, Jumpy and Jumpy, who were a little disappointed. They had often heard of icicles of frozen maple sap, sweet like sugar. As Bunty had said, truly that wouldn't be much of a surprise. And you can't really call it a candy tree," said Bunty.

"Just you wait and see," said Uncle Wiggily, twinkling his pink nose again and smiling mysteriously like and tannish.

HOROSCOPE

"The stars incline, but do not compel"

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 11, 1936

Astrologers read this as a day of rare good fortune. They advise energetic work for whatever calling has as the others did. Both men and women should benefit. Women appear especially well guided under this configuration, which presages opportunities that are most favorable to their ambitions. College girls should improve every chance to gain a start in business or the professions.

This is a most auspicious wedding day. Since it promises prosperity as well as lasting loyalty and love. Again a national theatre will be advocated, but it will not be a centralized undertaking and Southern California will be a factor in its success.

Writers are to continue under a planetary direction that will bring them added honors as well as increased returns. Changes in the heads of publishing houses are foreseen. Advertisers should profit, for there is a forecast of revival of nationwide interest in the stage.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of advancement that will bring the fulfillment of ambitions. Much social activity will mark the coming months for men.

Children born on this day probably will be well-balanced and intelligent. In their appraisements of human values. Subjects of this sign usually are retiring by nature.

Otis Fisher Black, noted biochemist, was born on this day, 1871. Others who have celebrated it as a birthday include John Henry Clay, 1838, economist, and Henry Bryan Hall, 1802, engraver.

FIRE ON SHIP

Boston, March 10 (Associated Press).—City fire boats steamed down the harbor today to meet the North German Lloyd freighter Chemnitz, which reported a fire in her hold.

Capt. Fuller, wireless Boston agents that the freighter, bound from Philadelphia to Hamburg, had a blaze in the No. 5 hold. The vessel and its crew of thirty-eight were in no immediate danger, Fuller said.

CATARHAL DEAFNESS MAY BE OVERCOME

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or hard and ear noises or are growing tired of hearing go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parment (double strength), and add to it 1/2 pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has catarrhal deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.

Ship Driven Ashore And Crew Is Saved

Ss. Phyllis Abandoned Off Oregon Coast After Leak Discovered; All Members of Crew Reach Shore Safely

Associated Press
Port Orford, Ore., March 10.—The churning Pacific, robbed of its human prey, clashed against the wreckage of the steamer Phyllis today while the captain and officials of the Chamberlain Line laid plans to board the craft in search of possible salvageable cargo.

The Phyllis crashed on the rocky beach near Humbug Mountain, five miles south of Port Orford, yesterday evening after Capt. Victor Jacobsen abandoned attempts to reach Port Orford before the ship foundered. The crew of twenty-two was picked up by coastguardsmen.

Shortly after 7 o'clock ship's officers found three feet of water in the hold and the level rising rapidly. Orders for full steam ahead were given. The ship steamed rapidly, however, Capt. Jacobsen said, and it became apparent the craft would sink a considerable distance from its goal. He said he gave the order to beach the vessel in time to save the crew.

The men took to lifeboats the instant the Phyllis struck, the captain said. Flares were sent up as guides and within an hour a Port Orford coastguard boat had picked up the men and taken the empty lifeboats in tow. None was injured.

The Phyllis, a 1,206-ton steam vessel built at Aberdeen in 1917, was en route from San Francisco to Portland with 400 tons of general cargo. Capt. Jacobsen said he believed the ship was a total loss.

"We tried hard to make Port Orford, but it was just impossible," the captain said. "We finally had to turn to the beach, voided rocks and jumped to lifeboats when the Phyllis struck."

"We sent up flares immediately and the Port Orford coastguard responded. We were picked up within an hour, and had no trouble reaching shore."

Loading For South America

Ms. Leikanger Arrived This Morning; Joined By Cresington Court

Loading for Talara, Peru, the Norwegian motorship Leikanger, Capt. O. Madson, is at the Ogden Point piers today. She will take 440,000 feet of Vancouver Island lumber at this port.

The British freighter Cresington Court arrived at Ogden Point early this afternoon to take 366,000 feet of lumber for eastern ports of Canada and the United States. She will go to Philadelphia and then proceed to Halifax, Quebec and Montreal. She will be one of the first ships of the season to reach Montreal, being due there towards the end of April.

King Brothers, who are handling the Leikanger and the Cresington Court, expect the Tyr here on Thursday morning and the Idlesleigh on Friday morning. Both ships will load lumber.

The Ms. Pacific Commerce, in service for the Vancouver-St. Lawrence Line, is expected here Saturday morning from Saint John and Halifax. She is bringing a good cargo.

Atlantic Flights Start in Summer

New York, March 10.—Eugene L. Vidal, United States director of air commerce, told an American Legion meeting yesterday evening semi-weekly transatlantic flights between Great Britain and North America will start this summer on regular schedule.

Imperial Airways and Pan American Airways each will send two planes a week across the Atlantic, Vidal said. Passenger service, however, will not be inaugurated for "some time."

The planes will use the Newfoundland and Ireland route in summer and the Azores and Bermuda route in winter.

France plans eventually to make the Atlantic flight in a single jump. Vidal said, while German airplanes will use catapult ships in the vicinity of the Azores.

The face of the pier is covered with names of tramp steamers and liners from end to end. These names, painted in letter several feet high, stand out clearly all down the face of concrete. Some are superimposed on others, various colors of paints have been used and the workmanship in every instance has been painstaking.

Apparently many sailors, stung between dock and ship's side with orders to paint the ship's hull, have taken enough of their company's time and paint to leave the vessel's name on the big pier.

Vancouver, March 10.—Tugs and crews of the West Coast Salvage Co., under the direction of E. F. Cribb, manager, were busy yesterday attempting to salvage ninety large logs which broke from a boom recently and went ashore on the mudflats of the Fraser River at the north arm jetty.

The logs, totalling approximately 200,000 board feet, broke from two tugboats when they encountered a westerly blow off the mouth of the river.

Salvage operations are possible only at high tide and when the sea is calm, it is reported.

St. John, N.B., March 10 (Canadian Press).—The largest single lumber cargo to leave here this winter will go forward when the steamer Stranna sails today for Garston, England.

The shipment consists of 1,435,000 superficial feet of deals, New Brunswick spruce.
